Strong support shown for Barleys

Public hearing draws 900 people

Legal defense fund established

By DIETER KRIEG
MILLERSVILLE, Pa. — Drawing out 900 persons strong, with one of them — Amos Funk — delivering a petition filled with more than 1,000 signatures, concerned Lancaster Countians demonstrated their support for John and Abram Barley, who stand to have 58 acres of their land taken by eminent domain for a landfill.

The occasion was a hearing on the matter by the Manor Township supervisors, who in anticipation of a large crowd, chose to hold the meeting in Millersville State College's Lyte Auditorium. At odds were the Barley Brothers and their attorneys at one end, and officials and hired consultants of the Lancaster

Area Refuse Authority (LARA) at the other. Two of the three township supervisors — Edward Goodhart III and James Huber — sat in the middle to hear both sides of the controversy. The third member, Blaine Strickler, excused himself on the grounds of possible conflicts of interest and did not appear at the hearing. Strickler

MILLERSVILLE, Pa. — Three prominent Lancaster Countians announced Tuesday night that a legal defense fund for the Barley Brothers has been established. The three well-known citizens are: Amos Funk, Manor Township farmer and conservationist who has waged a campaign of his own to bring the Barley farm issue before the public and officials. Funk is also a board member of the Lancaster County Conservation District.

Charles Rohrer, last year's Pennsylvania Jaycees Outstanding Young Farmer, who operates a dairy, hog and poultry farm near Paradise.

Dennis Cox, Lancaster, an accountant and treasurer of the Lancaster County Republican Committee. All three will act as trustees to the fund.

Donations to the campaign which is officially called the "Save Our Farms Fund," may be made by mailing a check to Commonwealth National Bank, (Main office 28 Penn Square, Lancaster,

Milk support hike causes dismay

By DIETER KRIEG
ONO, Pa. — The announcement on Tuesday that dairy support prices would be raised to 83 per cent of parity came as both a surprise and unwelcome news to many dairymen. At a meeting here of the Lebanon County local of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative, two officials from the co-op voiced their fears.

Alfred Warner, Lebanon County dairyman, who serves on Eastern's board of directors, warned "I hope we're not building ourselves up for an even greater problem in the future." He wonders how consumers will react when the higher milk prices are reflected at the supermarket, and what will happen if the surplus milk problem is magnified. He suspects that the latter is a real possibility and has a lot of company on that train of thought. Numerous officials of several dairy cooperatives, as well as dairymen themselves and Pennsylvania's Secretary of Agriculture, Kent Shelhamer, have in the past few months voiced considerable concern over present milk production trends. In a nutshell, production is soaring, and the higher prices are likely to compound the situation. Freeburn Love, another Eastern official and dairy farmer member, admitted that the new parity prices sounded good. "But it's a wolf in sheep's clothing, as far as I'm concerned; production is too high," he warned.

"I know you can go to other areas where dairymen are complaining. But I hasten to tell you, there is no indication that there will be a wholesale exodus of producers," Love continued.

Love's comments took into consideration the requests of some farmer organizations which are calling for milk support prices of upwards of 90 per cent of parity. Those requests, however, are generally considered to be unrealistic and a sure way to disaster. Most producers in the mid-Atlantic area Federal Order 4 marketing area would have been happy with an 80 per cent parity level. It's estimated that it

Warren Leininger honored for pork work

By JOANNE SPAHR
BLUE BALL, Pa. — Warren Leininger and the Lancaster County Swine Producers go back a long way together. In 1957 Max Smith, Lancaster County Extension agent, established the organization which elected Leininger, a breeder of purebred spotted Poland China hogs, as its president. Leininger remained in that position for seven years after which he served as vice president. Since that time, he has continued as a member of the board of directors, but last Friday evening at the organization's annual meeting held in the Blue Ball fire hall, he made public the announcement that he would retire with the end of his most recent term of office.

In honor of his years of service to the organization, the Swine Producers presented the 69-year-old Denver resident and his wife Sally a terrarium shaped like a pig.

Prior to the presentation of the gift, Smith enumerated some of the highlights of Leininger's career. Along with his work in the organization, Leininger has shown 25 grand champion gilts at the Pennsylvania Farm Show in his 32 years of raising spotted Poland Chinas, and for 25 of those 32 years has worked with youth as a leader of the Lincoln 4-H Pig Club.

To sum it all up, Smith stated, "He's been active in COCKEYSVILLE, Md. — "Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc. is entertaining a new era," believes Herbert W. Wessel, Jr., president of the Board. He emphasized that fact in the opening of his report to several hundred members gathered at the Hunt Valley Inn in Cockeysville, Md., last Saturday for the cooperative's annual meeting.

Discussion on two major items facing the cooperative consumed most of the morning business meeting. Wessel spoke first to the formation of a new joint business venture with the Interstate Milk Producers,

Cholesterol issue easing for eggmen

By JOANNE SPAHR
LANCASTER, Pa. — According to Hendrick Wentink, present chairman of the National Commission on Egg Nutrition, the cholesterol battle is slowly easing for the poultry industry, but there is still a long way to go before the controversy comes to an end.

Wentink made these comments in an address to a group of industry men assembled for the third in a series of educational poultry seminars held last week at the Farm and Home Center by the Lancaster County Poultry Association.

"We are now getting both sides exposed," Wentink remarked, "and we have nothing to fear as long as they don't hammer us down without a chance for rebuttal," he stated. "When you give a housewife the facts," he continued, "she will settle for what suits her tastes and pocketbook."

He also pointed out that medical opinion is slowly turning away from the hardline belief that eggs and cholesterol are closely linked to heart attacks. Medical literature is now dealing more and more with the cholesterol diet and its affect on the heart.

"Many researchers and medical men who were against us before, now say that they are not sure if they were right about eggs and cholesterol. And, just a year ago they were absolutely sure of themselves," he declared.

Vicon fertilizer spreader

The most accurate fertilizer spreader
you can buy

The Vicon Spreader uses an exclusive fast-action spout moving back and forth at 540 times per minute to give even, rectangular coverage instead of the usual circular pattern. That means increased profit because you get uniform fertilizer coverage, resulting in better stands and higher yields

Give the Vicon fertilizer spreader a try. It costs no more than others. But it's better.

Public effort must continue

There's something to be said about a meeting which attracts hundreds of concerned citizens and then holds their attention for hours. That's what happened at Millersville State College's Lyte auditorium on Wednesday night when the Lancaster Area Refuse Authority, attorney James Heinly, and the public traded views on the question of how prime farmland should be used. Is to remain as productive farmland, or is to be scalped of its soil so that garbage can be covered with it?

The event on Wednesday night was a public hearing. But it was also more than that. It was an educational experience for many, as they witnessed the procedures of testimony and cross-examination. It was obviously interesting and important or people would not have stayed as long as they did. To stay awake and away from home until 1:40 a.m. is noteworthy, especially for those who had cows to milk that morning.

There's no question that the hearing had a serious tone to it. The issues involved are no laughing matter, yet the proceedings often created smiles and grins. Even LARA officials were caught grinning from time to time. The points made were often clever. The procedures had to be admired. The stamina of consulting geologist James Humphreville, who was in the public's toaster for five or six hours, had to be respected even though one might not have agreed with some of his testimony. The unfolding drama had all the excitement of a classy football game.

But the "game" isn't over yet. A second hearing will be held at the Millersville Auditorium on Monday, March 28, at 7 p.m. It's likely to be another evening of excitement with a critical issue hanging in the balance.

Some concern is being heard now over whether or not another crowd of 800 to 900 people or more will show up for the second hearing. The point of this editorial is to stress the importance of the issue involved. Attending the meeting would be educational and interesting, to say nothing about the implications it might have in the final outcome of this very important question on land use.

If this issue is going to be won on behalf of the Barley Brothers and other property owners at the Creswell landfill site, as well as similar incidents which are sure to come up elsewhere in the future, then public support is absolutely vital.

Groups of Young Farmer organizations, Sunday School classes - any group of concerned citizens, might consider doing their part by organizing this weekend to show up at Millersville by the car, truck, or busload. It's suggested you consider such a plan seriously.

LIFE on the farm

By DIETER KRIEG

The upper half of the metal barn window rattled and shook, until finally it popped out of position and hung suspended by two hinges. It flopped back and forth, banging against the lower portion of the windows. Then a burst of air hit the side of the barn and I thought every pane of glass was going to be sent crashing to the floor.

March was going out like a lion, leaving a path of destruction, extra work, and annoyances in its path.

Outside, on the heifer barn roof, sheets of tin were waving in the wind, while others were being lifted and lowered just enough to work the nails loose. Some fell to the ground to possibly be picked up by a cow's hoof or tractor tire. All a fellow could do at a time like this was just watch, and hope that the damages wouldn't be too high. This was no time to crawl around on the roof.

The barn windows were easier to take care of. Small wooden wedges driven between the concrete blocks and upper ends of the metal frames kept the windows in place. The locking mechanisms often weren't enough to do the job on their own, especially since many of them had corroded over the years or were broken.

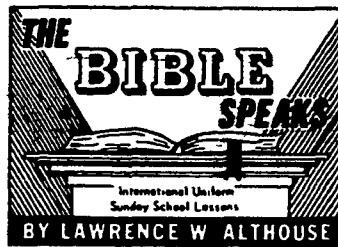

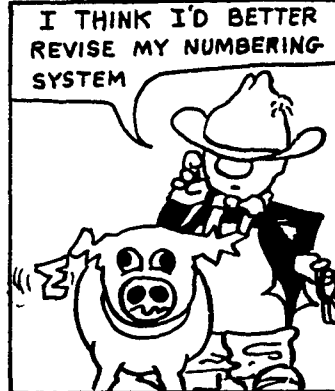

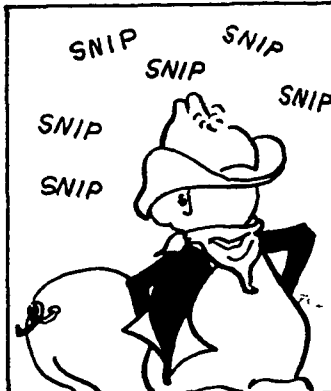

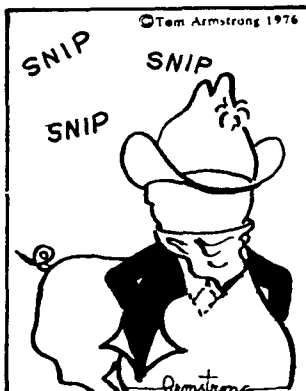

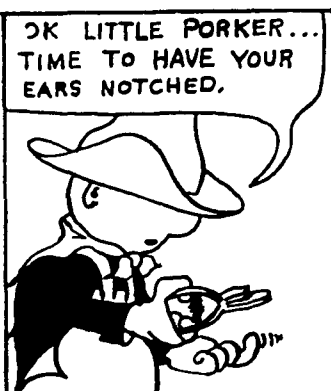

Gusts of air made milking a little unpleasant as well, since lime from the litter alley created indoor dust storms every time the door between the milk house and barn was opened. A fellow learned to move quickly to keep the effects to a minimum.

Another thing a fellow learned in a hurry was to not spread manure while driving in the wrong direction.

But some things could hardly be helped on a blustery March day or night. Like the loosening of sheets of tin on a roof or the loss of a window

RURAL ROUTE

TWO COPPER COINS

Lesson for March 27, 1977

Background Scripture:

Mark 12:41-44;
Luke 16:10 through 17:10.
Devotional Reading:
Luke 12:42-48.

If I were to ask you to name the greatest act of charity or benevolence of all time, what would be your answer?

Answers might range from the Rockefeller Foundation to the Marshall Plan, but no matter how impressive your answer might be, there would still be another act of giving that would outshine all the rest — and this act of giving could be represented by two copper coins, roughly worth about one cent today.

Her whole living

I am referring, of course, to the incident in Mark 12 where Jesus, sitting opposite the temple treasury, sees the poor widow put in her last two copper coins. For Jesus it was an inspiring sight and he called his disciples to share it: "Truly, I say to you, this poor widow has put in more than all those who are contributing to the treasury. For they all contributed out of their abundance, but she out of her poverty has put in everything she had, her whole living" (Mark 12:43, 44).

Jesus never measured money in terms of market value. Instead, he measured it in terms of what it cost the giver. For the affluent people who put substantial contributions into the offering, the giving did not cost that much when seen in the light of the abundance of their worldly goods. For the widow, however, the two copper coins added up to a complete sacrifice, for that was all she had.

Giving is a matter of relativity. Last weekend, for example, I put a ten-dollar bill in the offering plate at church and it seemed a magnificent sum, especially beside all those one-dollar bills! That same afternoon, however, I attended a professional football game and the admission charge of ten-dollars never gave me second thoughts. A ten-dollar bill in an offering plate seems very heavy, but that same bill on a ticket counter seems quite insignificant.

They were lovers of money

It is the value that we ascribe to money that determines its worth. By itself it is neither good nor bad: Money! Money!

TO RECOGNIZE FERTILIZER PLACEMENT

The placing of commercial fertilizers in relation to plant roots and seeds is very important; every farmer and gardener should realize the danger of burning the roots or seeds with either nitrogen or potash fertilizers. In the case of a complete fertilizer, one containing nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash, the plant roots or the seeds should not come into direct contact with the fertilizer. Roots will be burned and the plant may dry up; with seeds the sprouts will be hurt and the plant will be weak or deformed. In most cases the fertilizer should be put an inch or more to the side and the same distance below the plant roots or seeds. This will make the plant food available when needed by the growing plant.

TO ERADICATE JOHNSON GRASS...

This grass-type weed is gaining on too many farms in this part of the country. The plant resembles sorghum and has a very heavy and dense root system known as rhizomes; the plant is a very rank and aggressive that will take over most other farm crops. It is difficult to eradicate and farmers with this problem are urged to learn of the various control methods. Eradicane can be used in the spring to suppress the growth of sprouts from the rhizomes and to stop weed seed growth. The other time of treatment is when the plant is several feet high and in the boot stage. The ASC Office has established the control of Johnson Grass as one of their practices this year with assistance in material costs. Growers with this problem are requested to consider some other crops besides continuous corn in order to eliminate the weed.

TO CONSIDER MANURE VALUES...

This is the time of the year when many barns and feedlots are being cleaned out; this animal waste has some fertilizer value if it has been protected from the weather. The amounts of nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash in the manure can reduce the amount of commercial fertilizer needed. Cattle manure contains approximately 5 pounds per ton of each nitrogen and potash, and 10 pounds of phosphorus. Poultry manure will contain from 10 to 90 pounds of nitrogen per ton, 6 to 10 pounds of phosphorus, and 10 to 40 pounds of potash depending upon the moisture content. Livestock and poultry manures are worth money to the producer and deserve good handling and management. The 1977 Agronomy Guide will give additional information.

TO STORE LEFT-OVER SEEDS...

I'm aware of the activity in and around garden and farm seed stores these days, the spring planting season is at hand and most folks are getting their needs. Many of the left-over seeds can be used later this season or next spring, if stored in a clean dry place; also, keep them away from any weed-killer chemicals; this could effect germination of the seeds. One other thing is very important, do not eat or feed and left-over seeds to the family or to pets or livestock. Many of the seeds are treated for disease and insects and not to be consumed. Please follow this suggestion.

CUSTOM BUILT CALF HUTS MADE TO ORDER

Build a separate pen in front of each calf. Space each pen and calf far enough apart from the next unit to keep each calf separated from its neighbor. This isolation of each unit is very important. It helps prevent the spread of infectious diseases.

Straw or other suitable bedding is used for the floor. The calf is a proven design that provides a dry, draft-free shelter for the animal. The result...a much healthier calf!

HF AA releases science report

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. -- Important characteristics of the American Holstein-Friesian are detailed in a Holstein Science Report - 1977, released last month by Holstein-Friesian Association of America, headquartered here.

Prepared by Dr. John M. White, professor of dairy science at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, the report describes the emphasis that has been given by U.S. Holstein breeders, to milk yield, milk composition, size, strength of udder attachments and feet and legs, to make the U.S. Holstein-Friesian cow the world's highest producing breed of dairy cow.

Most of the genetic progress that has been made for milk yield has resulted from sires selection. With artificial insemination, the very best bulls can be used extensively to sire future daughters and sons. For milk yield, the breed has improved genetically at a rate of about 220 pounds of milk per year over the last several years.

Type or body conformation, also receives considerable emphasis in herd breeding programs in the United States. The results can be observed in the U.S. Holsteins tend to be larger, with more strongly attached udders and more acceptable feet and legs than Friesians from many other parts of the world. These characteristics have been recognized both in the U.S. and worldwide as those which contribute most to the profitability of a dairy herd.

Copies of this Holstein Science Report are available from the information department, Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

Constant use of leaded fuel in a car equipped with a catalytic converter is harmful to the performance. While most gas stations are now equipped with pump nozzles that cannot put leaded fuel in cars that require the unleaded varieties, farm gas pumps may not have such provisions.

Therefore, it pays to make sure to double check before putting leaded fuels in cars or farm trucks equipped with catalytic converters.

Agway Liquid Supplement makes a lot of sense... especially at pasture time

ALS is Agway Liquid Supplement. It's the new name for LPS, the protein balancer that has made profits for Northeastern farmers for the last dozen years.

It's the same unique, research-proven product that lactating cows, dry cows, heifers, and beef cattle consume to meet protein requirements.

ALS makes good sense the year around but especially in the springtime when animals go out to graze. At the start of the season, pasture quality is about as good as it's going to be; protein content will deteriorate as the weeks pass.

That's when ALS proves its worth. ALS will help you get the most from your pasture by insuring that protein needs are met. Cows and heifers will lick up their needs at the free-choice feeder.

If springtime means pasture time on your farm, check into ALS . . . the only liquid protein supplement Agway sells.

Step into a basic Surge Sawtooth Parlor and look around closely.

The Surge Sawtooth Parlor is designed for the man who likes to handle cows in groups. It minimizes operator travel and makes it easier to observe cow movement in and out of the parlor. Udders and milking units are also more easily observed.

1. Milking Stalls. Surge Sawtooth herringbone milking parlor stalls provide maximum access to the cow for preparation and milking
2. Pipelines. Properly sized, welded pipelines mounted below the cow platform with adequate slope protect milk quality and flavor. They also contribute to a more stable milking vacuum at the teat end.
3. Milker Units. The Surge Mini-cup offers mobility, visibility and greater capacity than other claw-type units. Functional C.I.P. design for rapid milking and better sanitation.
4. Vacuum. Your Surge dealer considers the total vacuum system. Pump capacity, line size and vacuum controllers are coordinated to meet the specific needs of your milking system.
5. C.I.P. Cleaning. Your Surge dealer will analyze your water and recommend cleaning procedures and compounds consistent with local regulations and good sanitation practices.
6. Pulsation. An important consideration in obtaining fast milking action and proper teat massage is that the pulsation control, pulsators, shells and inflations be properly matched.
7. Milk Receiving Equipment. Surge Engineering arranges all milk handling and power equipment neatly on one stainless steel panel.

Now you can SEALSTOR® feed for both your livestock and your land.

The Oxygen Limiting SEALSTOR System

For the past 27 years, the makers of Sealstor systems have manufactured thousands of quality glass-fused-to-steel products for agriculture and industry. Today, we offer a complete range of sizes in forage and grain structures. Before you buy any oxygen-limiting, top-loading, bottom-unloading feeding system, check Sealstor's features. Pound for pound, our fiber-glass roof is stronger than steel. It has fewer panels, fewer seams, fewer bolts. It absorbs less heat. The steps are recessed in the roof for safety and the dome shape provides more useable storage space. (Grain and Forage structures — 6,000 to 42,000 bushels.) Our rugged, sweep-arm auger unloader has no costly chains to break. "Short-arming" is unnecessary. Yet you get higher volume, push-button feed delivery.

The SEALSTOR Liquid Manure Control Center

Sealstor offers the widest range of sizes in glass-steel liquid manure storage structures. You can start with a 10' or 15' above-ground height and later expand to a 15' or 20' height. For additional strength, all vertical seams are double-bolted. For more positive containment, more sealant is used. (Liquid Manure storage tanks — 60,000 to 750,000 gallons.)

It's your money. Send for the facts. We believe you'll select Sealstor.

Although the hearing wasn't slated to start until 7 p.m., people began to arrive an hour earlier, and by the time proceedings started, the 880-seat auditorium was packed. A few dozen people

The slogan turned out to be appropriate in more ways than one since three well-known Lancaster Countians under a separate headline on page 1.

The much publicized controversy between LARA and the use of agricultural land for a landfill took on a sporting event atmosphere at Wednesday night's hearing. Throughout the 6½ hour meeting the spectators heckled, cheered, whistled, and even booed from time to time. Taking almost all of the beating was LARA's consulting geologist, Jim Humphreville, who was on the witness stand for close to five hours. As a result of the lengthy proceedings, the hearing was adjourned at 1:40 a.m. Thursday morning and a second hearing will be held Monday, 7 p.m. Lyte Auditorium, here.

The proceedings started slowly, with Humphreville explaining in great detail as to why LARA needed to acquire 58 acres of the Barley farm for their landfill at Creswell. The 900 people in the auditorium followed the explanations with occasional loud signs of irritation or disagreement.

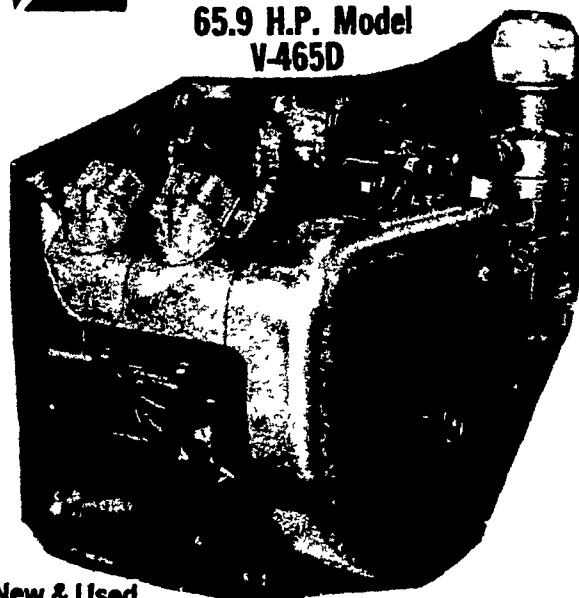

Humphreville's testimony was then cross-examined by Barley's chief counsel, James Heinly. Obviously well prepared on the issues at stake, Heinly excavated the geologist at every turn, scooping up information which he felt was pertinent to the matter. Humphreville on numerous occasions declined to answer a question, claiming he was not qualified or knowledgeable enough to do so. That proved to be a high point late in the proceedings when a nearly identical question was brought up by

20% of dairy herd milks over 20,000 lb

George Underwood, owner of the Pioneer Valley Farm in northeast Maryland, has a 115 head dairy herd on a Wayne feeding program. Of his 106 cows milking, 23 — or over 20% — produce over 20,000 lbs.

Underwood feeds Wayne 16% Test Cow dairy pellet in the parlor. He feeds Wayne 16% Test Cow in a magnetic feeder to all cows milking 50 lbs. or more.

Wayne 16% Test Cow Pellets contain:

- High energy - to balance low energy level of hay
- Low fiber - to balance high fiber of hay
- Mineral fortification - to balance hay mineral levels

Underwood also feeds 4 lbs./head/day of Wayne Sweet Bulky to his milking cows.

He top-dresses Wayne Sweet Bulky on a 60-40 mixture of corn silage and haylage. Wayne Sweet Bulky is the palatable ration that increases intake and production. Add to all this the 6 lbs. alfalfa hay Underwood feeds each head daily, and Wayne P-12 Mineral free-choice, and you've got a Wayne dairy program that's hard to beat.

Pennsylvania on guard against pseudorabies

By DIETER KRIEG
LANCASTER

Midwestern hog operations are experiencing increased outbreaks of pseudorabies, a deadly swine disease, and that news is causing concern in all other parts of the country where hogs are raised. Pennsylvania hog producers and veterinarians are therefore bolstering their efforts to keep the disease out.

Dr. Leonard Harrison from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, told a group of more than 200 regional hog producers meeting here last month that 60 new outbreaks of pseudorabies were recorded in Iowa alone during the first 50 days of 1977. He told the hog producers the disease is close to 100 per cent fatal in younger pigs, but "not as serious" with older swine. Generally speaking, pigs three weeks old or older have greater resistance to pseudorabies.

Pseudorabies is not a new disease. It was first discovered by a Hungarian in the early 1900's and showed up in the United States in 1931. Pennsylvania's last known case was diagnosed in 1968.

Pseudorabies receives its name from the terms "false" (pseudo) and "rabies" because its symptoms are similar to rabies. Hence, "false rabies" or pseudorabies. It can affect swine, cattle, goats, cats, rabbits, among others. If cattle get the disease, it appears to be an end point and will stop spreading. Swine, however, will spread it and producers are therefore understandably worried. According to Harrison, swine are the only animals which show serious effects of pseudorabies. The disease effects the nervous system and is often referred to as "mad itch."

"The perplexing problem about pseudorabies," Harrison said, "is that it looks like influenza and other illnesses. Clinical signs are often misinterpreted because of their similarities."

Dr. Leonard Harrison

Harrison described the situation in Pennsylvania as "confident." He noted that the Commonwealth "may be one of the healthiest places in the country for raising pigs." One of the reasons the Bureau of Animal Industries official gives for Pennsylvania hog producers being comparatively safe from the disease is that hog farms in this state are not "back to back" as they frequently are in the Midwest. Accordingly, Harrison believes pseudorabies won't become a real problem in the Keystone State if farmers are careful. He does acknowledge, however, that "occasional outbreaks" may occur.

A complicated and lengthy testing procedure is the only tool hog producers have available to them to detect the disease. "Vaccination for pseudorabies is out," Harrison indicated. The test for pseudorabies is so complicated that only 300 samples can be taken care of in one month. "We need a couple of weeks to get the results out, but it's a very good test — a very effective test," Harrison pointed out.

A pseudorabies testing program for hogs coming in from out-of-state is on the drawing boards and needs approval by Agriculture Secretary Shelhamer. Once passed, it will require a 30-day negative test for all breeding hogs coming in from other states. Feeder and slaughter hogs are exempt from the measure. Fifteen states and Canada currently have similar regulations. The Pennsylvania hog industry asked for the program which is currently being studied and reviewed. It could become official any day now.

Following his presentation Harrison was asked what would happen if a farmer had pseudorabies discovered in his herd. "If you get it, the herd would have to be quarantined and destroyed," he answered.

A short cut to help detect exhaust system leaks was recently suggested by C. D. McCoy of Morris, Oklahoma, who says: "Everyone uses a variety of carburetor cleaners, deposit busters and the like at some time or another. The smoke produced when these chemicals are induced into the engine through the carburetor makes it easy to find exhaust system leaks. Where there's smoke, there is the leak."

Pa. 17604) or to any of their branch offices. Donations are not tax deductible. Legal costs of "upwards of $20,000" may be incurred if the Barleys end up going to court to save their farmland.

According to Funk, the fund will give concerned Lancaster Countians the opportunity to give more than just vocal support. There has been a good bit of the latter in recent weeks, most recently at the public hearing held at Millersville's Lyte Auditorium on Wednesday night. Objections were heard not just on the proposal to take farmland from John and Abram Barley, but also on the operation of the adjacent dump near Creswell. One young man who lives within a quarter mile of the Creswell landfill said "you call the dump a sanitary landfill...but there's trash hanging in the trees, there's garbage all over the place...you call that sanitary?" Another challenged the efficiency of the dump, noting that it may take 30 years for the leachate treatment plant to complete operation.

People of nearly all ages stepped up to the microphone to voice objections or ask questions, such as this one by a girl: "How would you feel if you were in the Barley's position and had your land taken?" Geologist Jim Humphreville answered he'd accept his compensation and be happy.

Richard Bauder, who works as an engineer for the Pennsylvania Department of Resources, warned: "The sacrifices are too great to buy only six years (if the Barley land is acquired by the Refuse Authority, as estimated four, five, or six years of usefulness would be added)." The long term solution has to be looked at more closely. I think you (LARA) are taking the short-term solution, which will be too costly in the long run. You're going to have to do it right sooner or later anyway." He also suggested the Barley's may be in a position to sue the Refuse Authority if pollutants and excess noise levels disturb their dairy operation. The land for which LARA has filed a declaration of taking comes within 108 feet of the barn at one point.

Henry Hackman of Manheim concluded his testimony for the evening by saying that historically, the loss of farmland has always led to the downfall of civilizations.

"The Good Book says where there's no vision, the people perish," he exclaimed.

LARA itself, involving the Lancaster landfill across the Lancaster-Chester County line near Honey Brook. Although Humphreville had earlier declined to give details on the issues in question, he opened himself up when LARA needed the supporting words from him on a related issue.

That testimony caused Heinly to object and request to have the aforementioned testimony stricken from the record. Goodman upheld the motion. Meanwhile the crowd snickered at Humphreville's allegedly inconsistent stand on the questions. All along, however, Humphreville kept his composure and faced the technical cross examination despite an audience which seemed occasionally ready to crucify.

Heinly's lengthy inquiry was followed by questions from the floor. A number of people streamed to the microphone, and thus the needling and bombardment of questions continued to batter Humphreville. It was at this stage of the proceedings that the crowd often cheered as though the home team might have scored a touchdown. The home team in this case Barley & Co., or on a broader perspective, land for agriculture, not for garbage dumps. The auditorium was filled with Barley supporters.

Enthusiasm broke loose when Earl Pfoutz, Jr. of Millersville R1, concluded his remarks at the microphone. The elderly gentleman who could pass as Santa Claus himself, asked Humphreville if LARA had considered land for dumping which was currently owned by the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company. Pfoutz indicated that PP&L was looking for a way to utilize the strip. Humphreville said he had not looked into that possibility.

"Would you look into it?" the man with the long white beard asked politely.

"I will if I'm asked," Humphreville replied.

"I'm asking you as a citizen," Pfoutz concluded while wild hoots and cheers and whistles broke out all over the auditorium. According to the crowd, it was a superb play for yardage which ended in a touchdown.

Numerous other speakers received the same sort of cheers. LARA testimony, on the other hand, was frequently met with disrespectful comments from the crowd. On occasion, Goodman became the target of the offense. He had intervened on at least one occasion during the proceedings and stopped to explain an item from time to time. The irritation on the part of the audience revolved around the fact that Goodman failed to use his microphone for many of those occasions.

"Use the mike," spectators would shout. Goodman apparently did not hear the shouts or chose to ignore. The crowd became upset and at one time drowned his remarks out entirely. "He doesn't want to be heard," one man exclaimed loudly.

Sympathy and support was running unanimously in favor of the Barleys, although speakers occasionally commended LARA for their work and efforts. The point always was, however, that there was disagreement on this particular issue, and the public very much wanted the Refuse Authority to change its course. That was the reason for this hearing. The Manor Township supervisors have the power to refuse or allow LARA to go onto the Barley property for the purpose of scalping 58 acres and then using the soil as cover material in the nearby garbage dump. It's likely that the case will go to court no matter which way the supervisors decide to go.

No indication was given by officials early Thursday morning when the meeting broke up as to what the decision might be. LARA was able to present only one of its key witnesses, Humphreville, while most of the 6½ hour hearing was consumed by cross-examinations from Heinly and questions from the floor. The hearing continues Monday, 7 p.m. at the Lyte Auditorium, here.

utilization with construction of the "powder plant." Ralph Strock, business manager of MCMP, directed a large portion of his annual report to the problems caused the cooperative by the ceasing of operations by a large customer, Koontz Creamery, which closed its doors on March 6.

"For more than a decade, it was clear that the vertical integration of the major grocery chains into bottling milk for their own stores would create serious problems," said Strock. "There simply would not be enough sales left, after the integrated grocery chains served their own company stores, to permit efficient operation of those plants that remained. Inevitably, some would fail and some would survive.

For the independent bottler—generally family-owned, under-capitalized to utilize today's technology—the answer is often a slow death with company assets mortgaged or assigned to the hilt and not very much left when the doors are closed," Strock continued. "This was the Koontz problem and it is, being repeated over and over throughout the country. It is not said by way of criticism of grocery chains but simply to say that the grocery chains have developed a better 'mousetrap' and the old ways are no longer viable."

Maryland Cooperative stands to lose between half and three-quarters of a million dollars, the business manager explained. However, because management foresaw problems arising from Koontz several months ahead of time, security arrangements were made which prevented losses of much greater amounts.

Both Strock and President Wessel emphasized that funds to cover the Koontz deficit will absolutely not come out of member milk checks. Instead, the cooperative expects to be able to offset the Koontz losses with savings from 1976 operations.

Wessel emphasized that if the production of the approximately 200 farmers that went to Koontz daily would have been handled through independents, instead of a cooperative, each dairyman could have probably expected the assessment of about six week's milk checks.

Surplus milk remains the scourge of dairy farmers and cooperative management throughout the Mid-Atlantic region. Sales in the Federal

Lancaster Farming, Saturday, March 26, 1977—29

Order 4 have been holding up well, but unprecedented jumps in production have taxed excess-production facilities to the limit. Milk deliveries to area plants were up eight per cent in January over 1976 figures. The three principal milk-producing states in the Mid-Atlantic region, Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania, ranked one, three and four in production percentage increases over one year ago.

"Unless there is some change of direction in either production or sales, we may see, for the first time ever, a Class II utilization under 50 per cent for the Spring and Summer months," warned Strock. He added that continual demands for increased price supports can only worsen the situation, triggering higher production for higher price, and forcing the surplus to danger levels.

"I am fearful that if production continues unabated, or even increases still more, the CCC will be buying such enormous quantities of product that the whole dairy support program will come down around our ears," he added.

Despite problems facing dairymen, cooperative Board members and management remained basically optimistic, if dairy farmers will voluntarily restrain themselves from overproducing.

"We've had other down years before and we've rebounded even stronger than ever. I'm convinced that MCMP will take a strong part in the new approach to marketing in the future," concluded Wessel.

Four retiring directors with a combined service of 44 years of service on the Board were recognized during the business session. They are: Allen Cohey, Chestertown, Md., District 9; Sam Jones, Forest Hill, Md., District 1; Harold Thomas, Keymar, Md., District 3; and Raymond Shrock, Grantville, Md., District 11.

In a surprise presentation, Wessel was honored by the Maryland Association of County Agricultural Agents for his contributions to Maryland agriculture. Kenneth E. Wisner, president of the Maryland Association presented the plaque to Wessel during the luncheon program in the Hunt Valley ballroom.

ALL NEW BOU-MATIC MILKING UNIT

to keep up with today's cows

Introducing the All New Bou-Matic milking unit. Specifically designed to do a better job of milking today's high-production, wide udder cows.

The claw has the clean, efficient design of the basic Bou-Matic claw. But we've made the new Bou-Matic claw wider for greater capacity. More importantly the inlets are farther apart, to better "reach" the teats of those wide udders.

Our new stretch-bore shell and liner assembly does not require assembly tools. And the liner adjusts to four different tensions for maximum milking performance. The vented visi-nipple helps reduce backwashing, and the weighted shell is designed to reduce teat cup creeping - for more complete milking and improved milking quality. The mouth of the new P2 liner is pre-formed with soft petals to ensure a good vacuum seal and help eliminate fall-off.

Greater capacity, wider reach and the milking performance of stretch-bore liners - now available on the All New Bou-Matic milking unit. The milker that keeps up with today's cows.

Lunch by Farm Women No. 20.

USDA Secretary Bob Bergland raised the floor prices to 83 per cent of parity on the basis of President Carter having expressed a personal preference for the higher figure, and because of severe drought in the Midwest and Pacific Northwest. Despite those conditions, however, national milk production is the highest it has been in more than 10 years. Carter reportedly preferred the higher rate because of campaign promises he had made.

Love continued his assessment of the situation by exclaiming "I hate to see the government build up big stockpiles of solid dairy products. When the government holds those large stocks, and is willing to sell them at discount prices, we can't get the prices we need and want from our handlers."

The Eastern milk

producer predicted that the consumer will resent the increase in milk prices and that the government will have surplus milk supplies which "will come back to haunt us."

"I wish there was some way we could put a lid on expenses, rather than keep increasing the value of milk," he concluded.

Wanner's remarks reflected identical thinking, and both acknowledged that the concerns are much broader than Eastern's region of membership. The Syracuse based dairy cooperative is the largest in the Northeast, with a membership of 8000 dairymen.

Another concern which came up during the meeting was the continued existence of Federal Orders. Love noted that the farmers' support for Federal Order 2 is dwindling and dipping dangerously low. Although it's not presently something to worry about in Order 4, he cautioned that weaknesses would show up in Order 4 if Order 2 falls. He emphasized the importance of member support for their cooperatives, which he claimed have been responsible for providing the mechanisms by which the Federal Orders were set up.

"I'm going to be the first to resign if we don't have Federal Orders," he exclaimed. "It would be chaos. Without Federal Orders the handlers would tell you what they'd pay." Bargaining power would be lost, he suggested.

Also of concern is the Pennsylvania law requiring milk handlers to be bonded. Love says the present $200,000 limit is not nearly high enough, and when a dairy goes out of business, the farmer-shippers often get stuck with no paychecks as a result of it.

The elections for the Lebanon County local's officers went as follows: Elwood Heller, president; John Bomgardner, secretary; Elwood Weidman, treasurer; Franklin G. Warren Jr., delegate.

or two. Those were minor damages compared to some farmers who have lost entire roofs or had equipment and livestock crushed beneath buildings which caved in.

On most any day a farmer can appreciate the wind and even take it for granted. Like rain and sunshine, it's essential for growth. But too much at a time, and the results can spell disaster. The wind - strong or gentle - is a part of life on the farm.

Never store lettuce next to apples, plums, pears, avocados, tomatoes or melons. These give off ethylene gas which can spot the lettuce.

"Newly published research is now shooting holes in all the old research," he affirmed, but he did concede that certain organizations are still not won over.

The biggest source of concern is the present policy of the Heart Association.

"The Heart Association doesn't publically speak about cholesterol - they now speak about high blood pressure," he said, "but the pipelines are still full of the old propaganda, and the local associations are still using it as well as home economists and school nutritionists."

Continuing his thought, he stated point blank, "Neither the hardline anti-cholesterol people nor the egg substitute and vegetable oil people are as yet ready to lay off eggs, so there is a lot of work to be done."

He spoke of the frustrations which NCEN experiences with setbacks such as the recent Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs (McGovern Committee), which outlined in its dietary goals that, among other things, Americans should avoid food with high cholesterol counts.

"They came out with a great big blast of eggs," quoted Wentink, "and, now I hear that Senate Bill 270 has been introduced which recommends following the McGovern Committee's recommendations in school luncheon programs and school nutritional training."

"If that happens you might as well forget about the egg business," he stated flatly.

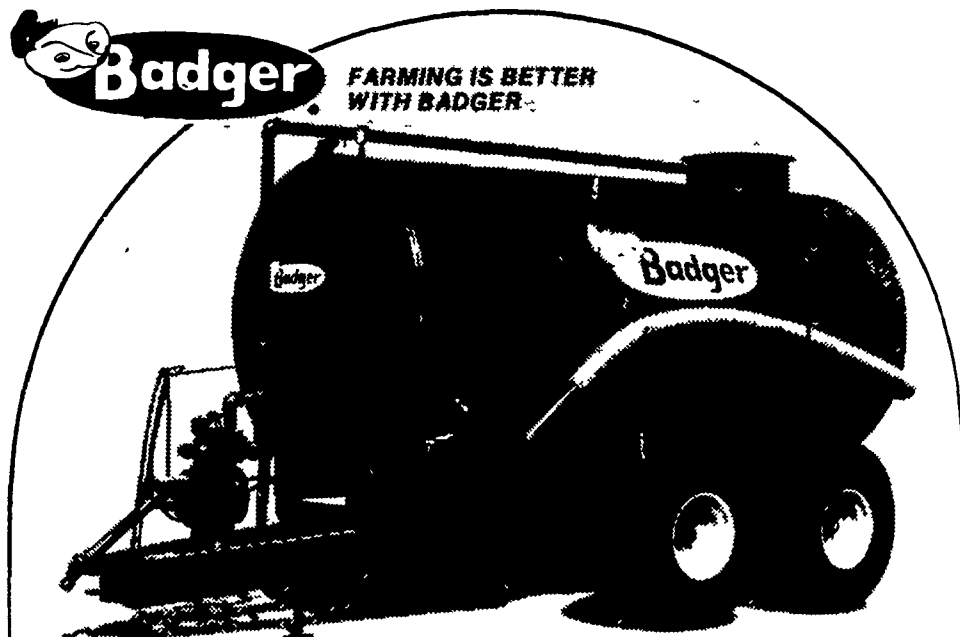

As a way to work on the problem, Wentink said that NCEN must keep the scientific records updated and take exception with any erroneous cholesterol information which comes out.

On the positive side of the issue, he did point out that egg consumption did not drop in 1976 and which is hopefully because of the work done by the various committees.

who is just beginning with the organization, was honored for his outstanding achievements in the swine industry. Richard Strauss, Ephrata R1, received the James Z. Martin Swine Achievement Award, which alternates between a deserving 4-H and FFA member every other year. It was the FFA's turn this year, and Strauss was chosen. He is a member of the Cloister FFA chapter.

Since his entry into business a few years ago, Strauss has consistently been in the limelight during Fair season. In 1976 his "big win" came at the Farm Show when he showed the grand champion junior market hog.

"There has been stiff competition at the Farm Show in the past few years, and it's a real honor to win," remarked John Henkel, board member, who introduced Strauss.

Henkel also reviewed some of Strauss' grand championship honors which he has taken at the Manheim and Ephrata farm shows as well as Keystone International Livestock Exposition.

"He's been around, he has good animals, and he knows how to show them," Henkel concluded. Strauss had six sows and gilts last year with an average of nine-and-a-half to 10 pigs weaned per litter.

Don Robinson, Ephrata, vocational agriculture teacher from Eastern Lancaster County School District, also received a plaque of appreciation for his service to the board as the vo-ag representative, and as an outstanding leader in swine.

The top 10 exhibitors in the Lancaster Hog Carcass show were also announced. Max Smith, who made the trophy presentations, remarked that "The proof of a good market hog is how it is hanging and how it cuts." He also told the 293 individuals present that the difference between the top ten winners was very slight. Grand champion of the show went to Gehman's Mill, Denver, and reserve champion went to Tony Folker, New Holland. Finishing behind the two champions were animals entered by Dale Nolt, Manheim; Bud and Gary Dean, Strasburg; Mark Nestleroth, Manheim;

J. Strawbridge, Stewartstown; George Getz, Denver; Ezra Good, Denver; and John Henkel, Strasburg.

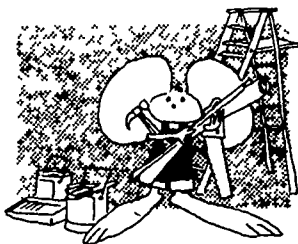

Also elected as three year directors were John Groff, Larry Weaver and Lew Ayers. Ayers will serve as the vocational agricultural representative to the organization.

Bank board reorganized

STRASBURG, Pa. - The board of directors of The First National Bank of Strasburg elected William M. Musser, Jr. chairman of the board and John W. Jones president of the bank at its annual reorganizational meeting, following the annual meeting of shareholders on March 15. Also, reelected to office were John E. Burkholder, vice president and Howard E. Groff, secretary.

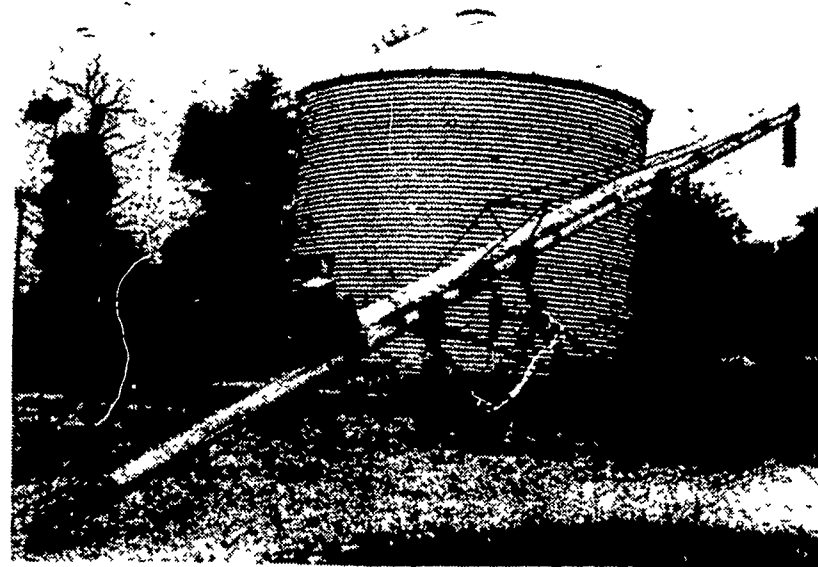

In addition to Musser, Jones, Burkholder and Groff, J. Everett Fisher, J. Robert Hess, Calvin G. High, Donald H. Hoffercker, E. Glenn Nauman, Vincent W. Nolt and Richard E. Rohrer were reelected to the board of directors by the shareholders.

The First National Bank of Strasburg operates five banking offices in Lancaster County, with a sixth office to open in Lampeter in April. Assets totaled over $73,000,000 at year end. It is Lancaster County's oldest national bank.

The only four state capitals named after American presidents are Jackson, Mississippi; Jefferson City, Missouri; Madison, Wisconsin; and Lincoln, Nebraska.

Bergland reviewing USDA

WASHINGTON - Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland on March 18 called for a review of the Department of Agriculture's remaining 97 advisory committees to possibly abolish more than the 11 committees he terminated last month.

Mr. Bergland directed agency administrators to submit reports by May 15 that would cover such factors as:

- Specific instances of the use of advice and information obtained from the advisory committee's last meeting.

- Specific details on why the advice or information sought is not available from another source at less cost.

- Does the committee ... represent all interested "publics?"

- Is the information or advice essential to the operation of the program?

- Whether committee reports give majority and minority views and are readily available to the public.

Secretary Bergland said during the review period, no new advisory committees will be appointed and no existing committees will have their charters extended, but that established committees may continue scheduled activities, including meetings called before May 15.

120,00 sheepmen meet

DENVER, Colo. - Recent optimism within the sheep industry was reflected at the 23rd annual meeting of the American Sheep Producers Council (ASPC) held last week.

Delegates representing nearly 120,000 sheepmen nationwide met in Denver to review lamb and wool promotional plans for the upcoming year.

Speaking on the future of the sheep industry, Richard D. Biglin, executive director of the ASPC, said, "We must decide in detail what the American Sheep Industry wants to be, what its opportunities are and what needs to be done in a Blueprint fashion for the future. The need to plan ahead ... both long range and short term ... are more evident each day."

Of particular interest to all sheepmen was a discussion regarding the filing for wool incentive payments for the current marketing year.

There is a good chance that the wool incentive level may be increased and that such a change may be retroactive to the beginning of the current marketing year. Despite the fact that payments may appear to be small, producers should also file to assure the continuation of the ASPC. Producers are urged to file immediately after the sale of their wool is completed.

FREE HOT WATER...

MUELLER FRE-HEATER

The Mueller Fre-Heater conserves energy and provides "free" hot water by capturing the heat now wasted!

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS. Rather than using noisy, dust-creating fans with fragile, dirt collecting air-cooled condensers, the refrigerant is routed to a specially designed condenser/heat exchanger and its heat is transferred to the water.

A thermostatically controlled valve delivers 145° F water to a storage tank.

In addition to the thermostatic valve, a mixing valve is provided to permit "prepping" temperature water. Thus, the Fre-Heater delivers two temperatures of water — prepping and washing.

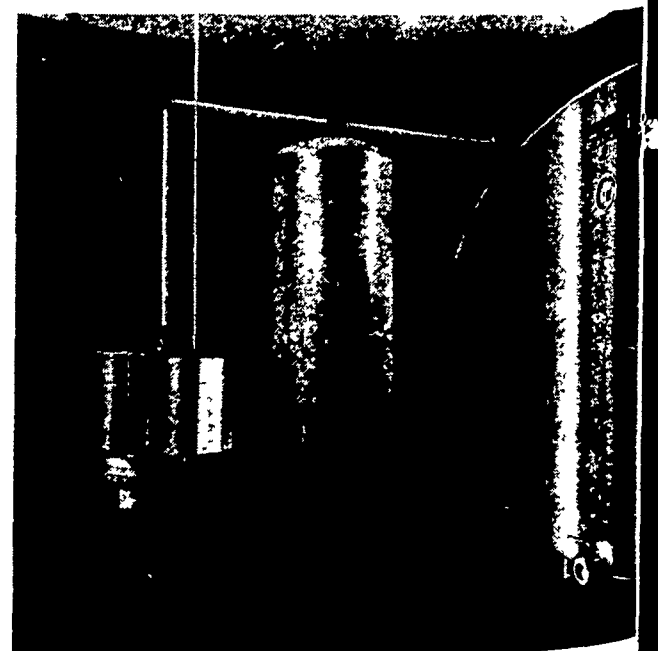

Tests indicate the Fre-Heater consumes 10% less power than an air-cooled system ... and you get Free Hot Water!

ELIMINATES REFRIGERATION SERVICE PROBLEMS!

The most common causes of slow cooling in bulk milk cooling systems are related to the air-cooled condenser.

The Fre-Heater eliminates these problems because:

- There is no air-cooled condenser
- The Fre-Heater is installed indoors
- There are no noisy fans to fail
- The head pressure is very stable — assuring longer compressor life
- There are no cold weather starting problems, plus ... the Fre-Heater conserves energy and produces Free Hot Water!

HOW MUCH WATER CAN BE GENERATED?

There are many variables, so this question cannot be answered directly, however, a rule of thumb is that a Fre-Heater operating on 60° F well water will produce a volume of 145° F water similar to the amount of milk produced during a milking.

Jones on NDC board

ROSEMONT, Ill. - Lester Jones, Medford, N.J., was elected first vice-chairman of the 1977 National Dairy Council Board of Directors at NDC's 62nd annual meeting held in Orlando, Fla., on March 13 - 16. Jones, the president of Inter-State Milk Producers Cooperative, was one of 30 prominent dairy leaders to become part of the Board.

Lester Jones

NDC was founded in 1915 by dairy and health leaders to conduct a program of nutrition research and education on milk and other dairy products, as part of a balanced diet.

Fifteen of the men were nominated from among processor-handler and dairy equipment and supplies NDC members. Fifteen dairy producer members of the Board are also members of the Board of Directors of the United Dairy Industry Association.

Thus, the 30-man NDC Board constitutes national representation for all segments of the dairy industry, and for the nationwide network of affiliated Dairy Council units which operate community-based nutrition education programs across the nation.

Homestead Notes

Despite her busy schedule, Phyllis likes to be home when her daughters, Sarah and Laura, come home from school.

She works for land use in Lancaster County

Under the current zoning statutes in Lancaster County, nearly 80 per cent of the total land could be developed into medium and low residential housing.

This may sound alarming to you, but it's true, according to Phyllis Whitesell, who is just beginning her second term as president of the League of Women Voters of Lancaster County. And the development could happen, despite the fact that 59 of the county's 60 municipalities have zoning ordinances.

A transplanted Virginia farm girl, Phyllis is a petite dynamo who quotes land use statistics as easily and knowledgeably as a dairy farmer might talk about his production records. This stems from the fact that before becoming president, she was the League's land use chairman.

Phyllis says the problem of covering the land with homes could arise because almost all zoning is out of tune with the county comprehensive plan, and in many cases, with the townships' own plans for what they would really like to see happen to their land. So, while the ideal of preserving farmland is expressed, zoning laws actually allow it to continue to diminish.

Talking on the phone is one way Phyllis promotes the League's position on important local issues.

In her capacity as League president, Phyllis discusses a report with current Land Use Chairman Linda McKee prior to their annual meeting.

Statewide, Phyllis affirmed that 42 per cent of the municipalities have no land use controls, or "are totally unregulated." This puts Lancaster County in the forefront.

Phyllis said, "Lancaster County is definitely growing. There is land to accommodate population projections through the end of this century." In Lancaster County, projections show an estimated 15 per cent increase, compared overall with 4.2 per cent for Pennsylvania and 13.3 per cent for the United States. She said, "We believe in guiding the growth, and in having an alert citizenry to see that growth is guided."

In Lancaster County 50,000 more housing units will be needed by the year 2000. She adds, "Decent housing does not mean it's going to be single houses for everyone." But there is room to accommodate these projected housing needs and still maintain farmland as designated in the county comprehensive plan, which the League supports.

She said that the League, in its land use statement, supports the concept of planned residential developments, which have met with some opposition. She said this concept is a way to use land more efficiently.

The League has studied the question of land use for two years, and has published a 14-page booklet detailing its beliefs and supporting the preservation of farmland and open space. The group has also been vocal in questioning LARA's right to take 58 acres of the John and Abram Barley farm by eminent domain.

Phyllis represented the state League of Women Voters at the Barley farm on the day the state legislators visited, and they have had observers at LARA's subsequent meeting.

"The Barleys have mobilized the population behind them," she asserts.

Phyllis's involvement with the League stems from her youth in southwestern Virginia where her father was a farmer school teacher. She said, "I spent half of my growing up years on the farm." Her father, who is still a member of the board of the soil conservation district, raised beef cattle and the crops to support them.

She said he was formerly president of the local historical society, adding, "My family was active in the community so I grew up interested in government." She recalled that her father took her to register to vote on her 21st birthday, and adds with a smile that she thinks he did it hoping he would have someone in the family to vote the same way he did.

Phyllis has been a League member for 11 years and said she has found it a good way to learn about the community. Her present involvement averages 30 hours a week, but she said, "I guess I get some personal satisfaction from it and I do feel a civic responsibility."

She is the mother of two daughters, Laura, 10, and Sarah, 8. Her husband William is the current Pennsylvania Secretary of Banking. She said, "As a mother of daughters I think it's important for them to see the many ways women can be involved in meaningful activities."

The 30 hours she spends - all voluntary - includes attending meetings and doing lots of telephoning. But, Phyllis said, "I always try to be here after school and have that time free for the girls' activities."

She added that she thinks it is important for her to spend her time at home with the children, adding, "Relative to your whole life, the number of years involved in rearing children is relatively small."

She stated further, "I do enjoy my work. There are so many opportunities and you learn about so much. It is fascinating to get into a lot of the areas we study."

While there are 175 members of the League locally, Phyllis says about 50 of these are active. "The League permits different levels of involvement," she explains. "We feel a member should be encouraged to do however much she wants. They can be as active as they feel they can be." There are no membership qualifications, just a $15 annual dues.

Probably the most well-known of the League's work is the voter service activity, informing and encouraging the public to vote. They also publish a voter's guide and a handbook on Lancaster County. Phyllis admits that the nationally televised presidential candidate debates helped a lot in increasing the public's knowledge of the League.

The League also selects areas of study and action. Issues are selected to be studied in detail, and the League "takes action within the governmental process." Study issues are always being up-dated.

Phyllis pointed out that in addition to the local league, there is also a state and national association, both of which also select study areas. Statewide concerns often involve lobbying state legislators and national study items are those issues affected by congressional action.

"We never make a statement unless we have studied the issue," she maintained. She also said that members do not always agree on an issue, but a consensus is reached, and there is an opportunity for a minority opinion to be given. The organization itself makes statements about its position on issues, but Phyllis said, "We encourage members as individuals and private citizens to make their opinions known."

Along with their land use position, the League supported the Clean and Green Bill, which was a referendum question on the ballot two years ago. She said the League feels land should be taxed as farmland, but few farmers have applied for the break locally. She said this is primarily because there has been no re-assessment here since 1960 and farmers are generally better off paying the present tax rate.

Lancaster Farming, Saturday, March 26, 1977—43

As for re-assessment, Phyllis said the state League supports a consistent ratio of assessed value to market value, and that tax assessors should be trained for their job.

She said the League often recommends women to be appointed to positions on county boards and authorities. "Women have more time than men who often already serve on too many committees. Women have been a neglected source."

In her opinion, Phyllis said the League serves as a consciousness raising group, and gets members interested in participating in their government and being part of the decisions. Often, she said, the League serves as a training ground for public service work.

She said the League usually meets with respect in its encounters, "because it is known that we are a concerned citizens group. When we lobby, we don't represent one special interest."

To the question of what an interested citizen can do to keep informed and act on decisions he or she questions, Phyllis gave several concrete suggestions.

"Be sure to read the legal notices in the newspaper," she began. Jokingly she said you may need a magnifying glass, but added that this is the place where actions are made public.

Attending supervisors' meetings is another way to stay informed. "People are usually welcome," she said. The League likes to have an "observer" at local meetings, and especially at county commissioner and county planning commission meetings. "This is a good way for citizens to be involved."

Her final suggestion was personal contact. Phyllis noted that this is usually better than a letter when inquiring about a specific problem, especially if you live in the municipality in question. Also, she said, each municipality has a planning commission, usually advisory in nature, which is a good place to review the plans for your municipality.

Along with land use, Phyllis is concerned with the preservation of food resources.

"I'm very concerned about this as I cook for my family, and I try to use dairy products and grains as source of protein," she stated. She likes to use the Mennonite Central Committee's cookbook, "More for Less," and "Diet for a Small Planet." And, despite her obviously hectic schedule, Phyllis finds time to bake bread for her family, saying, "I fit the raising time into my activities." The family also has a garden plot in the back yard of their 1311 Clayton Road, Lancaster, residence.

For Phyllis, making a commitment to the future of this county is important. In a well-informed manner, she and other League members are having an impact on the future use of this county's land - and that impact is having a direct effect upon you and your family.

New flower hybrids available

Four new flower hybrids will be available to home gardeners for the first time this Spring, according to University of Delaware Extension garden specialist Dave Tatnall. Top scorers in trials across the U.S. and Canada, the 1977 All-America flower selections include a distinctive carnation-flowered marigold, a vigorous hedge-type marigold, a double-flowered petunia, and a showy geranium that is easily grown from seed.

'Primrose Lady', the carnation-flowered marigold just released, is a creamy, primrose-yellow flower in the "First Lady" class. The plant grows to a height of 20 inches and produces blooms up to three and one-half inches in diameter. It shows good weather tolerance and will resist breaking apart in blustery weather when blossoms and foliage are heavy with rain. The plant is strong-stemmed, bushy and needs no staking.

Outdoors, 'Primrose Lady' blooms in July, well ahead of most marigold hybrids of the erect, large-flowered type. Blooming continues until frost. Developers of the hybrid also recommend its use as an indoor pot plant. For mid-March bloom, sow seeds in early November and give 60 degree night temperatures. When winter-planted, 'Primrose Lady' will flower at about six-inch height, with the large blossoms in striking contrast to the squat plants.

The second marigold among this year's All-America winners is 'Yellow Galore' - a sparkling yellow, hedge-type plant. Tatnall says the plant is also recommended for use in formal landscaping and containers.

The stocky mature plants of 'Yellow Galore' reach a height of 14 to 18 inches and are characterized by masses of four and one-half inch double flowers, which bloom only 70-80 days after seed is sown. Peak bloom occurs about four weeks after the first flower appears and lasts for over a month. Because of the self-cleaning nature of this vigorous hybrid, the plants are constantly covered with a solid mass of fresh blooms. Unlike some varieties, 'Yellow Galore' will not "burn out" before the end of the season but will continue to grow and bloom until killed by frost. The plant is also resistant to some disease-bearing insects.

A double-flowered petunia with a soft, salmon pink color, 'Blushing Maid,' also makes its appearance this year.

'Blushing Maid' begins to branch and flower while plants are quite small and continues to grow all Summer. Plants, which are somewhat smaller than standard varieties, reach about 10 inches in height and spread to 16 inches at maturity.

The fourth of this year's selections is 'Showgirl,' one of the new generation of geraniums that grow quickly and easily from seeds. 'Showgirl' is more compact and about six inches shorter than other seed-grown rose pink geraniums. It also flowers two to three weeks earlier than competitive varieties. The plants branch heavily from the base to produce dense growth and numerous ball-like flower heads. While the bright rose pink blossoms are not quite as large as tall geraniums grown for cut flowers, the early, heavy prolonged flower production of this hybrid guarantees more color per square foot in the garden. Plants continue to grow as they blossom, reaching about 18 inches at maturity. Flowering will continue right through the Summer, with plants retaining a neat, controlled appearance.

Tatnall says both seed packets and plants of all four new flower selections should be available this Spring.

haven't started anything. What now? Well, you turn to your Lancaster Farming with the "On Short Notice Recipes," and you get to work. Right? Right.

The majority of this week's recipes only take 30 minutes to make (as long as you have the ingredients), so they are ideal for last minute menus. And, the one which does take longer is ideal for freezing, so all you need to do is make it ahead of time, and open the freezer when you're in a pinch.

Or, if you are on the ball for the main course foods, but find, to your surprise, that your little one ate the last piece of cake when he or she came home from school, there is a vanilla cheese pudding in the column which should satisfy everyone's sweet tooth.

Hope these recipes come in handy for those last minute rescues which we all need some time or other.

"Kick" up corn profits with Unipel® Starter Special 13-34-10.

This is the "corn-popper" special...the most imitated pop-up fertilizer on the market. As part of a Unipel corn fertility program, it suits perfectly the young corn plant's immediate craving for nutrients to develop a good root system, the starting point for top yields

Yet, it's also a complete fertilizer with these key nutrients available in each Unipel pellet:

- * quick-acting, non-volatile nitrate Nitrogen that starts working immediately, even in cool, wet, early-season soils;
- * slow-acting ammoniac Nitrogen that provides continued feeding through the growing season;
- * both quick and slow acting Phosphorus to resist fixation, team with Nitrogen to become more efficient and feed plants for solid growth, help develop strong root systems;
- * vital Potash to furnish young plants with building blocks for strong roots, tough and hardy stalks to resist weather and stress of pests and disease.

We can recommend to you the program details for a sound Unipel fertility program—which, on Starter alone, has returned over $30 an acre above fertilizer investment more than blend "bargain" programs.

CHECK FOOD STORAGE AREAS FOR INSECT PESTS

Many pests entered warm houses during the Winter cold weather. That's why it's important to check food storage areas regularly for insect and rodent damage.

One particularly irritating problem is the presence of moth larvae and tiny beetles in stored food products. Their presence doesn't mean you are a poor housekeeper. These pests usually arrive as eggs in packaged foods you buy at the grocery store. This means they're always a potential problem.

Almost any kind of stored food may become infested. The foods most commonly damaged are cereals, flour, corn meal, raisins, dry dog food, powdered milk, cake mixes, and nuts. Insects you are likely to find in these include the confused flour beetle, the sawtoothed grain beetle, the drug store beetle, the cigarette beetle, weevils, moths and book lice. Two of these, the drug store and cigarette beetles, will even invade spices such as chili powder and paprika.

Insects readily move from one container to another, so it's a good idea to check foods often. If you suspect an infestation, remove all packages from your cupboards. Examine a small amount of food from each package for signs of insects or insect damage.

Discard infested products and clean cabinets thoroughly. Use a vacuum cleaner to pick up spilled food from cracks. Then scrub the area well with soap and water. Insecticides usually are not needed if cupboards are cleaned thoroughly.

If you are unsure whether a food is infested and don't want to discard it, heat it in a shallow pan in a 130 degree oven for half an hour, or place the food in a zero degree freezer for four days.

If you plan to keep food for a prolonged period, store in well-sealed containers. Keep food packages as dry as possible. Products with a high moisture content tend to attract insects.

Rotate food packages so that products purchased first are used first. Store the latest purchases at the back of the shelf. Move these forward as you restock. You may want to keep small quantities of susceptible foods such as corn meal in the refrigerator.

MAKE YOUR OWN
BROWN SUGAR

Here's an idea that saves a little and adds a lot of zesty taste to many favorite foods - all it takes is sugar and molasses. You can use un-sulphured molasses to make your own brown sugar at home. It costs about 15 per cent less than the store-bought kind which often gets caked or hard.

To make the equivalent of one-half cup brown sugar, blend together one-half cup of ordinary granulated white sugar with two tablespoons of unsulphured molasses. Unsulphured molasses is pure concentrated juice of sugar cane and contains nutrients not present in granulated sugar.

You can make any amount of brown sugar you need, but for best results, it's preferable to make it as you need it. When preparing recipes that call for brown sugar to be mixed with other ingredients, there is no need to pre-blend the white sugar and molasses. Just add these two separately and prepare recipe in the usual way.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

The rhubarb is a foot high. The blueberries have been pruned (how I hated to saw off an old limb that was six feet tall, but I've read that old wood must be gradually trimmed away). The yard has been raked and soon I hope to plant those 100-foot rows of sugar peas.

So with all this evidence of Spring, we must admit it is just around the corner. Maybe the March wind does blow and we have a few snow flurries but inevitably the yard will need to be mowed and the garden weeded.

When some of my boys were younger they mowed the yard in the shape of the "states". No wonder it looked like children did it—at least they had imagination. Some of the daffodil beds got flattened with a broom, too, when they became upset over something. That's when I became upset.

Without a diary it would be difficult to remember all their growing up days.

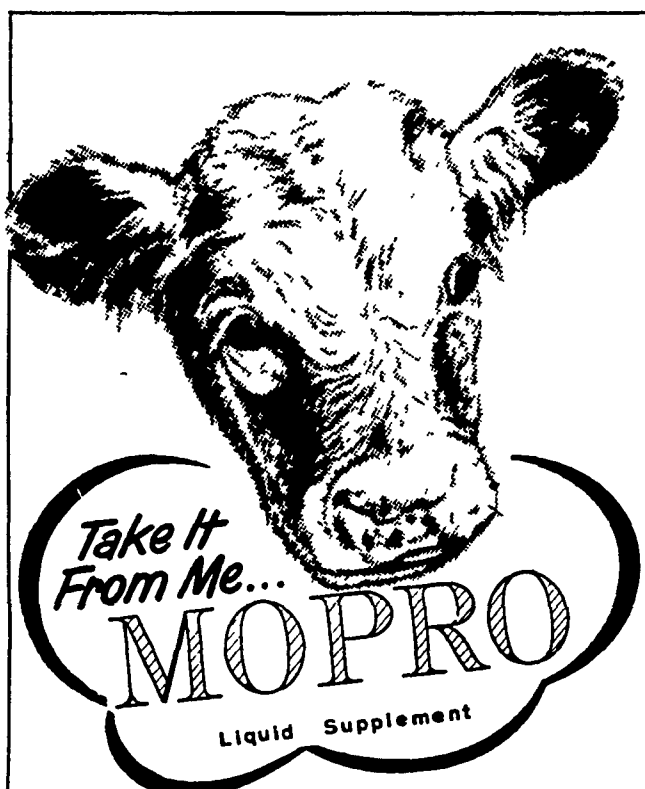

xxx

Recently, I read an autobiography where a man stated that, "his family wasn't poor but they had no money." Somehow, that really rang a bell. It seems to me that many a farm family could agree with his statement.

Our expenses keep escalating as farm machinery prices increase. Insurance - be it auto, medical or liability - takes a large share of our income. Then too, we, even as other folks, pay more and more for fuel bills.

There is one area in which we have no complaints, though, and that is in the food line. Farm families have traditionally eaten well—as they should. If we don't eat top quality food, it is because we are selling it to pay other costs.

"With my type of breeding operation, I just wouldn't be without Agway"

Walter C. Zimmerer, Jr.
Big Brook Farms, Monmouth County, New Jersey

Walt Zimmerer runs an average of 450 registered Black Angus on 1000 acres near Colt's Neck, N.J. His stock descends from the storied Earl Marshall strain. Most of the animals are sold for breeding purposes except for the bull culls which are fed out for beef.

He grows 300 acres of no-till corn, mostly Agway hybrids, and 250 acres of clear-seeded alfalfa, the seed also supplied by Agway. Fields and pastures are limed and fertilized by Agway on a regular basis.

Only one commercial supplement is used on Big Brook Farms. Agway 55% Beefmix® is top-dressed on silage and added to the grain for steers. In the interests of good herd health, all cattle get Fortimin (an Agway Mineral Mix) every day.

Both Walt and his herdsman, Randall Miller, give high marks to Agway and their Enterprise Service Person, Bob Buckles.

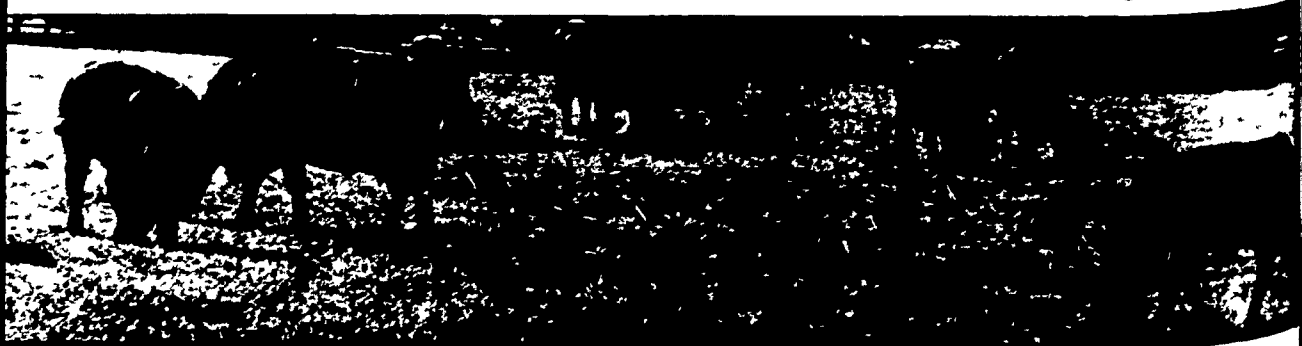

"Good service" . . . "Sound crops advice"
"Fine products" . . . "Competitive prices"
"Single-source shopping" are some of their many reasons.

"To me," adds Walt, "Bob Buckles is Agway. And, as I've already implied, I need them both."

If you'd like a man such as Bob Buckles working with you, a man backed by the kind of service you wouldn't be without, call Agway and ask that an Enterprise Service Person get in touch with you.

Stress effects to be studied

MEDIA, Pa. - The Penn State Extension Service is offering three series of stress seminars this Spring, according to Greta C. Vairo, Extension home economist with the Penn State University. The three seminars will be held in different locations. If interested in knowing the dates, times, and locations, call the Extension Service at 215-891-2491 and ask for the flyer on the stress seminars. There will be a cost of $2 for the series. Topics will include "Stress, Our Friend or Foe;" "Coping Mechanisms, Good and Bad;" "Home: Tempest or Teapot," and many more. Small discussion groups will further explore these topics. The public is invited to attend.

My Thoughts

And welcome to them

By JOANNE SPAHR
Associate Editor

People used to pity me. There I was, at the tender age of seven, with what appeared to be a premature case of acne.

"Poor thing," they would comment, "can you imagine what she's going to look like when she hits puberty?"

No one ever answered that question, they just shook their heads in sympathy, and hoped they wouldn't be around to witness the result.

I have to admit, my forehead did look an awful lot like the lid of a salt shaker with all its tiny holes and pick marks, but I didn't have a case of acne. What I had was a glaring case of stupidity, commonly known as the "my brother builds traps in his straw forts and I fall into them," syndrome.

You know what it was like. Puppy dog-like little sister trailing big brother farmer around the straw mow while he stacks bales and makes forts.

"Oh, George, (he always called me George, Henry, Richard, or any combination of these, but never, never my right name) you gotta see this one," he would whisper, as he stuck his head out of one end of the fort, and wiggled his index finger at me with an anticipatory grin. Somehow he always reminded me of the stranger my mother told me to watch out for who would say to me, "Hey, little girl, want some candy?" and then steal me. Fortunately for my parents, I never ran into that man with the candy, because if I would have fallen for his lines like I did for my brother's, the family would have gone bankrupt from paying the ransom money.

Anyway, I always grabbed the bait, and like a fool, climbed into the hole to experience the wonderful mysteries of the straw fort. And, when I did, I always met my Waterloo, like the time the tarantulas attacked me...

Mysteries of the Straw Fort to be continued next week.

On being a farm wife - and other hazards

By Joyce Bupp

Calendars are nifty things to have around the farm. One at the desk is full of notations about banquets, farm meetings, and business memos. One beside the kitchen sink keeps records of birthdays, anniversaries, doctor and dentist appointments. And the barn calendars retain important herd breeding dates, vet visits, and calf births.

This week, they all proclaimed the same noteworthy message - the first day of Spring had officially arrived. For a change, I was ahead of the calendar. I knew it was Spring without any written reminder. How? A yearly recurrence of a strange farm-related malady suddenly appeared. "Tractor fever" had struck again.

Symptoms of the affliction are subtle at first; only after years of experience can the observer point toward the eventual breakdown of the stricken subject. Offhand comments about oil leaks, transmission problems, and starter failures are reliable clues. Next, the subject will spend literally hours staring intently at the farm sale and machinery ads in the paper as he progresses to the second stage of the disease. At this point there may be slight side effects, such as odd slips of paper covered with phone numbers appearing in pockets, on desks, and randomly stuck to the office bulletin board. Newspapers will develop gaping holes as ads are stashed away for future reference.

Addiction to the telephone marks progression into the third stage. The receiver may attach itself to the ear of the sufferer for long periods of time, as prospects near and far are checked out. Your telephone company may give you a citation for meritorious service when they receive your next payment.

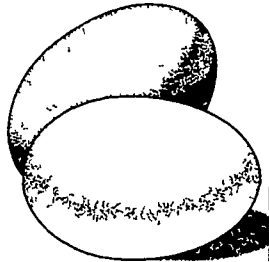

By far the most crucial stage is the fourth. The afflicted will suddenly go off by himself for hours while looking over real live prospective tractors prescriptions at machinery dealers and farm sales. This stage may pass quickly or hang on for many weeks.

However, you will know the cure is at hand when he walks in the door one day with a smile and a self-satisfied expression of accomplishment on his face. Yes, you have all survived "tractor fever" and lived to tell about it for another year.

Do you suppose someday modern scientific medicine might come up with a vaccination for this "bug" and take all his fun away?

HERE'S THE 015.

HERE'S WHY IT'S A STIHL®

1. A high voltage ignition system and an efficient combustion chamber means it'll start work when you do. Every time.
2. A "no-thumbs" fully automatic chain oiler lets you concentrate on cutting. Not oiling.

3. Hot chamber magnesium die-casting makes the housing tougher. And the whole saw lighter.
4. Balanced fuel and oil tank capacities keep you from having to refill one when there's still plenty in the other.

5. It's been designed to last at least twice as long as any other saw like it.
6. And by lasting twice as long it'll really only cost about half as much.

Shoppers wowwed by agriculture display

YORK, Pa.—“Why does that pig’s tail curl?”
“I’ve never seen a chick hatch out of an egg before. It’s stupendous!”
“What kind of cheese is this? It’s delicious.”
“Are these apples for sale?”
“Why are these pigs so pink?”
The questions, answers, and comments flew through the air at the York Mall last Friday and Saturday as the Women’s Committee of the York County Farmers’ Association took it over for the American Agriculture Day Display.

Two years ago, the women ventured into the mall for the first time with a display covering just one end of the shopping area. It was such a success that they promised to come back this year with enough to cover the whole length of the shopping center.

The undisputed favorites of any farm display are always the real, live baby animals. Children, and adults, too, flocked around the calf crib to touch and ask “Hamming it up” is Aileen Detter, secretary for the York County Farmers Association, and her unwilling four-legged friend. If you want to get the attention of dozens of Mall shoppers in a hurry, pick up a pig. The pig’s shrieks brought astounded people scurrying from all directions to see what was happening.

statistics farmers shared with urban consumers.

A small utility tractor at the one end of the mall beckoned children to crawl on and sit in the driver’s seat. The accompanying price tag reading $7470 helped explain the cost factor end of farming to observers.

“Pigs Is Beautiful” was the theme the pork producers chose to set the stage for telling the leaner, nutritious pork story. Aileen Detter, who was sporting her famous “pork cuts” jumpsuit, didn’t think they were too beautiful when one small porker almost jumped out over his pen.

Shoppers sampled all-beef bologna and listened to the ballad of “The Great American Farmer” while they munched. On the other end of the beef display, a poster broke down the cost of raising an animal from 475 pounds to market weight of 1075 pounds. The final figure showed a net loss of $33.30.

And, even the men got into the action. They helped supply the muscle for setting up some displays and loading and unloading from vehicles. Paul McPherson, New Park, was discovered running machinery, as usual. The machinery was not his big grain combine, though. It was a movie projector, showing films telling the story of the American food producer.

Are the women ready to go back again?

“Well, next year we’ll try.....,” someone was overheard to say.

questions about the day-old baby Holstein. Two weaning-size piglets snoozed in a playpen further up the mall, generating endless questions about age of market pigs, location of various pork cuts, and marketing weights.

But the top drawing card was the incubator filled with two dozen hatching baby chicks. It was a push-becomes-shove task just to get close to the incubator, surrounded by faces displaying emotions of disbelief, awe, and pure delight.

Static montages of mouth-watering fruits and vegetables explained that pesticides make cheap and abundant food possible. Cartoons accompanied some displays, adding that touch of humor to the facts and

Manheim Young Farmers hold annual banquet

By SALLY BAIR
Feature Writer

MOUNT JOY, Pa. - James Kettering, Manheim R 7, received the two top corn production awards presented at the Manheim Young Farmers annual banquet last week. Kettering was first in the corn silage contest, with 26.87 tons per acre, and in the grain contest with 179.3 bushels per acre. Second place in the silage award division went to Elam Bollinger, Manheim R 7, with 21.38 tons per acre, and third went to Luke Brubaker, Mount Joy R 1, with 21.21 tons per acre.

In the corn grain category, second place went to Dale Nolt, Manheim R 1, with 173 bushels per acre. Darryl Bollinger, Manheim R 7, placed third with 168 bushels per acre.

Dairy awards were given for high butterfat production, as recorded in Dairy Herd Improvement records. Daniel Stoltzfus, Mount Joy R 1, was first with 662 pounds of fat and David Landis, 1896 Colebrook Road, Lancaster, was second with 630 pounds.

Darryl Bollinger was recognized for the highest production in hay. A unit of corn went to the following young farmers who are in their beginning year: Jay Wissler, Mount Joy R 2; Tom Weidman, Lititz R.D.; and Bob Keller, Lititz R.D.

Secretary of the Manheim Young Farmers Earl Landis presented a plaque to Glenn Spangler, advisor, in appreciation of his work with the organization.

In his opening remarks, Spangler challenged the young farmers to think about their role and asked them to consider the story of agriculture which they tell or the impression they leave with people. "What does the consumer think of agriculture? What do you think? What are you doing for agriculture? And are you doing enough?"

Assistant principal of Manheim Central High School Harry Wirth told the group that the school appreciates more than the farm products which they provide. "We appreciate the quality of life which farm families give to their child and to the community." He said rural families instill good citizenship and Christian values and rear children who are interested in environmental concerns. These characteristics, Wirth said, provide a good learning environment in the school. "We appreciate your positive approach to life in general."

FFA president David Keller thanked the young farmers for "working with us as you have. Many of you were part of us and part of our success. We hope you will continue to help us."

Regional II Vice President Earl Stauffer told the group that the annual meeting of the state association has been moved from November, which is crowded with conflicting meetings, to February. In 1978 it will be held in Lancaster at the Host Inn Town on February 8-9.

Entertainment was provided by Steve Brubaker, magician and ventriloquist. Door prizes were also awarded.

New Idea's Wheel Rake

The quick 'n clean hay machine

Use the Avco New Idea Speed Wheel Rake over any terrain—smooth, uneven, hilly or contoured—and it gets the hay other rakes miss . . . and gets it fast. Raking wheels feature independent spring counter-balancing so teeth follow ground contour. Gentle action builds big fluffy windrows without shattering valuable leaves. You can use the basic 5-wheel rake (8'4" width) for the first cutting, then add 6th or 7th wheel for later cuttings. Stop in and see this low cost rake for yourself!

New Idea's Long-Reach Elevators

REACH!

Get extra reach and save money with this multi-purpose elevator!

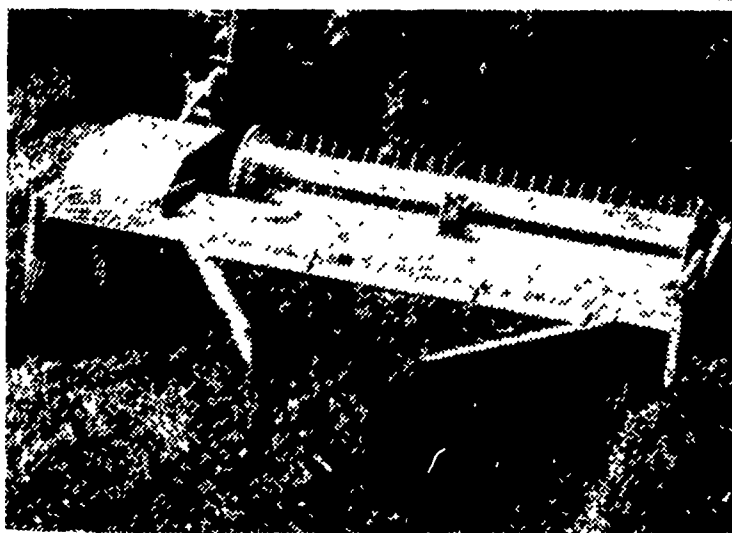

New Idea's extra reach lets it do work that would take a longer and more expensive elevator of another make. It's built extra-strong in lengths of 31 to 51 feet. Drive with PTO, electric motor or gasoline engine. Written full year warranty.

We make your job a little easier.

New Idea's Mow/ditioner

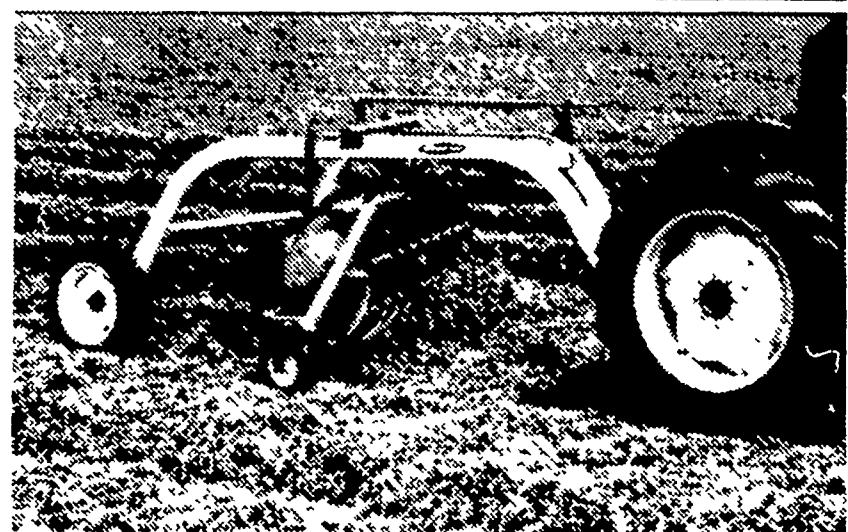

Cows can tell the difference

That's what farmers tell us. Mow and condition part of your hay with a New Idea Mow/ditioner and the other part with any other mower-conditioner—and your cows will tend to pick the Mow/ditioner hay. Why? Because cows don't like "match-stick" broken stems. They do like soft hay. The kind a New Idea Mow/ditioner makes.

This rugged 9-foot machine is the best all-around machine you can buy for making quality hay. It features a header so well balanced . . . and flotation so well controlled . . . that you avoid excessive knife and guard damage, scalping and poor cutting. Swing-out shields adjust to many positions for swaths or windrows of any desired width.

Come on in and check out New Idea's Mow/ditioner. You'll see the difference in your hay—and chances are, your cows will, too.

New Idea's Belt Rake

For turning over a new leaf...gently

Steady, positive, clean raking without noisy clatter! This is what you get with the Avco New Idea belt drive rake. Exceptionally clean raking and minimum leaf shattering are the result of the constant ratio between reel speed and forward travel. The smooth, lifting rolling action of the tooth bars builds uniform fluffy windrows. Windrow fluffiness can be varied by tilting the basket. Long lasting optional rubber Flex-joint teeth available. And, for raking over rough terrain, there's an optional gauge wheel that fits on the frame end.

SEE DEALERS ON OPPOSITE PAGE.

Recipe Swap

This week "Recipe Swap" is featuring a schnitz pie recipe in answer to a request made a few weeks ago. Surprisingly enough, in this Pennsylvania Dutch area, only one reply came into the office. It appears that very few people are making this dish at the present time.

Two more requests have made their ways to the Lancaster Farming office. Says the woman who made them both, "I recently ate out, and had corn custard which was raised like an egg omelet on the top. This part tasted like egg custard, but the bottom looked like dried corn. It is about two inches high and was cut into squares. Would anyone have this recipe?"

She also asked for old fashioned crumb cake crumbs, which she says older people used to eat for breakfast.

These sound like two tough requests to answer, but most likely there is a cook out there who can be of service. If you think you can help, send your recipe to "Recipe Swap", Lancaster Farming Newspaper, Box 266, Lititz, Pa. 17543. Don't forget your name, address, and phone number.

Land used meeting set to finalize recommendations

SCHUYLKILL HAVEN, Pa. — The Need for land use policies in Pennsylvania is being discussed on both state and local levels. State legislation, if any is passed, should reflect the need for regional, county, and municipal awareness and still remain sensitive to the desires and attitudes of all the people of Pennsylvania.

The Land Use-Citizen Participation Steering Committee has recently held 11 meetings throughout the seven counties of northeastern Pennsylvania. These meetings are designed to solicit recommendations and provide direction to the Governor's Office of State Planning of Development's (OSPD) Interim Policy Report, A Land Policy Program for Pennsylvania.

In an effort to finalize these recommendations, a conference is planned for April 2 at the Treadway Inn on Route 315 in Wilkes-Barre from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

The morning session will consist of a general outlook of the Northeast region, include a keynote speech by an important state official, followed by a panel discussion comprised of various high-ranking state departmental and legislative members. This panel will entertain from the floor following their discussions.

The afternoon session will consist of eight discussion groups running simultaneously. These groups will discuss topics which were considered important by the public at the 11 Fall meetings.

The registration fee for the conference, which will include lunch, will be $8 per person. Checks should be made payable to the Economic Development Council of northeastern Pennsylvania. Questions should be directed to Jody Zakrevsky, Economic Development Council, P.O. Box 777, Avoca, Pennsylvania. 18641. Telephone (717) 655-5581.

York 4-H beef club gathers for honors banquet

By Joyce Bupp
York Co. Reporter
SHREWSBURY, Pa.—York County 4-H Baby Beef Club members, parents, and friends filled the Shrewsbury Fire Hall to overflowing for the annual awards banquet last Saturday night.

A dash of unexpected excitement was added just as the program began when the fire alarm sent firemen, who had been helping in the kitchen, rushing to trucks to give assistance at the scene of a nearby automobile accident.

Baby Beef Club President Tim Beck performed master of ceremony duties for the recognition program.

This year's annual Citation Award for contributions to the baby beef program went to Helen and Ralph Dixon, York R 11. The Dixons have served as organizational leaders of the Highmount 4-H Club, and Ralph is currently serving a three-year term on the 4-H Center Board of Directors. Together, the Dixons are active promoters of Angus cattle and have started their own breeding herd.

They were instrumental in putting together the county meat raffle plans, and helped sell many tickets, with Mrs. Dixon handling the treasurer duties for the fund raising activity. She also took a major part in organizing a food stand for the wagon train activities last Summer in York.

Winner in the Overall Rate of Gain competition was Lisa Gross. Category winners were: Archie Kohr, No Implant competition; Lisa

Tony Dobrosky, assistant county extension agent presents the 1977 York County Baby Beef Citation Award to Helen and Ralph Dixon, York R1. The Dixons have served as organization leaders, and Ralph Dixon is a member of the 4-H Center Board of Directors.

Gross, Single Implant; and Ralph Dixon, Double Implant.

Tim Beck won the Roll Call trophy, based on the method of presentation given during meetings and the management of the entire project. Runners-up were Kathy Sunday, Christine Shive, Terry Lynn Dixon, and Kevin Beck.

Will your feed efficiency measure up to Mol-Mix?

To any cattleman, whether he's a feedlot operator or a cow-calf man, feed efficiency is the name of the game.

But mere supplementation may not be the whole answer. If you choose an inferior brand, you may just be wasting your money.

Mol-Mix liquid feed supplement contains extra "performance oriented" ingredients that many others don't have. Things like: phosphoric acid, ammonium polyphosphate, corn distillers solubles, and condensed fermented corn extractives. A feed supplement, as with any manufactured product, is no better than the quality of its construction. You get what you pay for. Mol-Mix is made with the best ingredients available.

It's just an out and out fact that Mol-Mix will make more net profits for you. Some have reported as much as $5.00 return for every dollar invested in Mol-Mix.

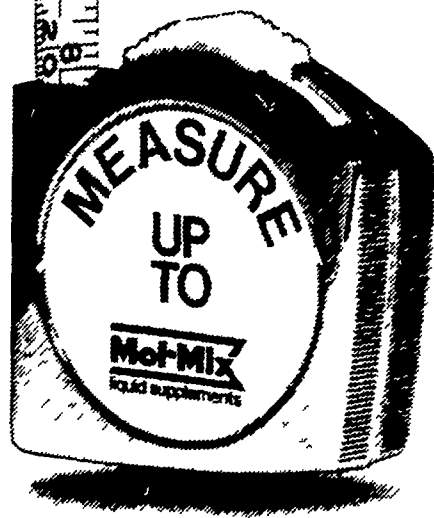

Stop in at your Mol-Mix dealer and find out how. He may just have a nice surprise for you.

Get the jump on spring.

There are a couple of great feelings all growers share. Seeing a uniform stand of seedlings pop up early in spring. And harvesting a record corn harvest. Planting Funk's G-Hybrids brings you those feelings at both ends of the growing season.

High germination, early emergence and seedling vigor are bred in to all Funk's G-Hybrids. Plant them early in the spring, even with minimum tillage. And days later see those eager seedlings pop through the soil and spring to life.

This head start means young root systems and stalks have every chance to develop added strength to stand through storms and drouths. Planting early also means making the most of your growing season, and beating any bad weather in the fall.

This spring, why not get off to a fast start. See your Funk's G dealer now for the hybrids that can't wait to shoot out of the spring soil to hit the high yield goals you aim for each fall.

Ag land trust plan halted

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Officials of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Co. of Chicago recently met with Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland to report that they have decided not to proceed with their plan for a proposed "ag-land" trust fund.

The proposal was to set up a $50 million fund to invest in farmland on behalf of clients and corporate employee profit sharing and pension plan trusts.

Bergland said the meeting was amiable and added, "I was impressed with their open mindedness and willingness to discuss problems of mutual interest."

U.S. Department of Agriculture economists have stated that the potential negative aspects of such a fund appear to outweigh conceivable gains.

The Secretary said the officials told him the bank withdrew its application on March 7 to the Internal Revenue Service, U.S. Treasury Department, requesting tax-exempt status for employee benefit plans investing in the proposed trust fund. They said they made their decision after discussing it with various members of the business and agricultural communities and government leaders.

PFA to meet with lawmakers

CAMP HILL, Pa. - Local county officers and legislative committee members of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association will converge on Harrisburg this Monday for their annual legislative conference.

Participants will be briefed on current legislative concerns by PFA personnel during an informational meeting at 1 p.m. at the Penn Harris Motor Inn. From 3 to 6 p.m., association members will meet with their area legislators at the Capitol Building in Harrisburg. General Assembly members will join their farm constituents at 6:30 p.m. at the Penn Harris for the legislative banquet.

Several top priority issues were earmarked for possible legislative attention in 1977 by the PFA Board of Directors. Key issues include agricultural research, bargaining legislation, inheritance tax, public employee act, improvement of rural roads, economic formula for milk pricing, sunset legislation, the milk marketing law, regulations on statewide banking, the election rather than appointment of the state attorney general, and the exemption from licensing of extra-width agricultural equipment.

Grafting demonstrated

DUNCANNON, Pa. - A free public nut tree grafting demonstration is being planned for April 16 in the Shermanata Grange Hall, near here. The hall is on Route 274, two miles west of town. The Pennsylvania Nut Growers Association is sponsoring the event, with Roy Snyder, county agent, informing visitors on new regulations about spray chemicals and their application.

Also featured during the day's program will be a sale of grafting bands, wax, knives, planes and literature.

Ag teachers, FFA students, 4-H'ers and other interested persons are encouraged to attend the meeting. It gets underway at 9:30 a.m. and continues through mid-afternoon. The tentative program calls for demonstrations and questions at around 10 a.m., followed by lunch at noon. The afternoon portion continues with demonstrations and a swap or sale of supplies.

Need better grass control?

In corn, a tank mix of Lasso® plus atrazine herbicides controls foxtails, fall panicum and crabgrass. Many broadleaves, too.

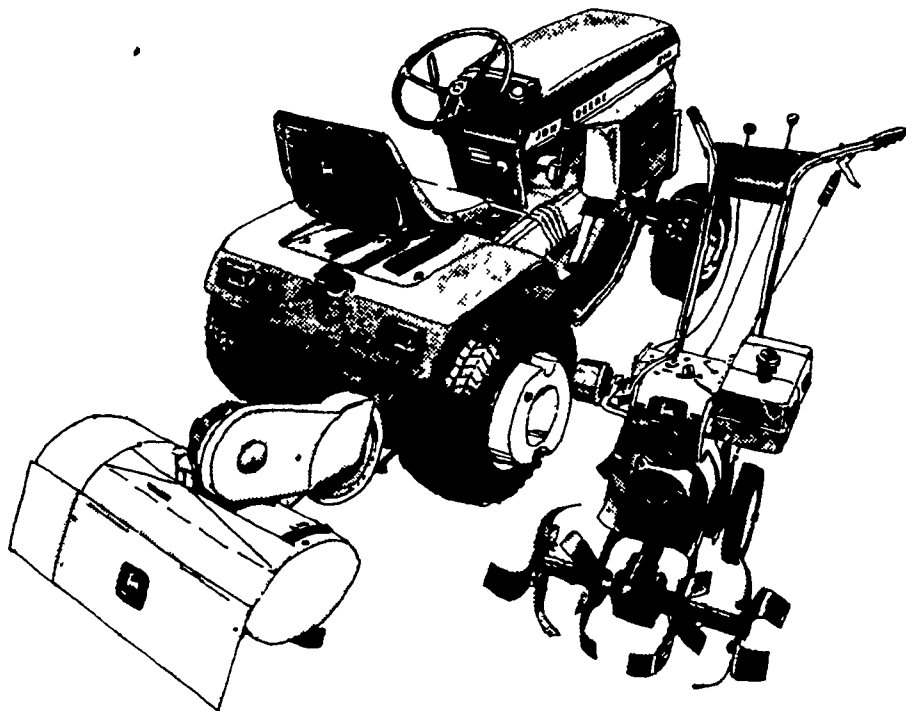

Lasso® Herbicide
Lasso is a registered trademark of Monsanto Company.
Always read and follow the label directions for Lasso.

Some of the most valuable cropland in North America lies buried under swing sets and sandpiles

Some of the most fertile soil in North America is as close as your own backyard. With just a few packets of seed, a little know-how and John Deere gardening equipment, your yard can become a garden of earthly delights.

John Deere Walk-behind Tillers, in 3½ and 6 horsepower, till swaths 13 to 24 inches wide, and up to 7 inches deep. Both feature a reverse gear to let you back away from tight areas. And a pressure-activated clutch for added safety.

John Deere Lawn and Garden Tractors pack the muscle you need for even tougher gardening chores. Choose a model, 10 to 19.9 horsepower, then add a capacity-matched tiller that tills paths 22 to 48 inches wide. Visit us soon. We have the equipment you need to make your backyard a garden of earthly delights.

Twenty-five years ago a chicken coop measuring 20 feet by 20 feet stood on these grounds. The beginnings of a constantly growing layer operation, the business has grown to 70,000 birds which lay an average of 55,000 eggs per day. The expansion took place gradually, going first to a large layer house which featured a single row of cages, and more recently to automated chicken barns

By DIETER KRIEG

BUCK, Pa — Robah Hess, an independent and progressive egg producer in Lancaster County, got off to a cautious start in his business, but he has always stayed on course, regardless of what the markets might have been telling him. It's the only way to go, he explains, "because you can't beat the market and might as well stay in. I learned long ago that a fellow just simply has to stay with it and be there when things get brighter."

Hess made the comment on the basis of more than 20 years of experience in the egg business.

Looking to the future, he says "I really believe that it will go along alright, and it'll have its ups and downs like anything else." The important thing, Hess believes, is to "never say quit, to have a schedule and stick by it, even if the economic indicators say "quit."

It's a plan which has worked for Hess, who went into the chicken business somewhat reluctantly in the early 1950's. "I wasn't excited about chickens back then," Hess revealed, "but I felt obliged at the time." The path he has taken since then hasn't always been smooth, and Hess admits with a grin that he still has regrets sometimes.

But that's not evident anywhere. Hess keeps 70,000 layers producing 55,000 eggs per day and has plans drawn up to keep the challenges before him for at least another eight to 10 years. "I'll keep going until I'm satisfied," he grinned.

which measure up to 500 feet in length. The remains of the old barn, built in 1954, are visible in the top center of the picture, above. It's being renovated to match the other modern facilities on the Robah Hess farm, near the Buck in southern Lancaster County. Economic trends have made the increases in flocks

The early driving force behind the Hess poultry business was Hess's mother, the former Bessie Erb. "She carried a lot of feed for many years," Hess said of his now retired mother. His father was a machinist at the power plant near Holtwood.

The original idea behind the Hess' chicken operation was to give the family a little extra income and something interesting to do. An older brooder house in Holtwood, measuring eight feet x 10 feet started it all in the early Forties. After that came a house which measured 20 by 20 feet. Broilers were the commodity at that time. In 1954 the egg trade started. In the meantime (1944) the family moved to a small farm (13 acres) just east of the Buck, taking the 20 by 20 chicken house with them. Hess has been in business

outstanding features

1 The built-in ventilation system keeps building dry and provides constant fresh air source. Unique air flow system pulls air in at roof ridge line, circulates it over the tops of the animals, down through the manure pit, and out. Fluorescent lights are included. All wiring meets National Electrical Codes.

2 One or more fans are located inside plenum chambers at end of building. Fan pulls used air uniformly from pit area to the outside. Building remains virtually odor-free.

3 Ventilation system works off a temperature control modulator that adjusts air flow from a whisper to a full breeze. Larger buildings have more than one fan. These other fans work off adjustable thermostats.

4 Farrowing stalls and pig panels are designed for animal comfort. Stalls are built of tough 7/8 in. vertical bars and 1-5/16 in. horizontal bars for long life. Solid pig panels are galvanized steel.

5 Each farrowing stall is equipped with an adjustable sow feeder and an automatic water cup. Nipple waterer is optional in place of water cup. Nursery feeders are provided for pigs.

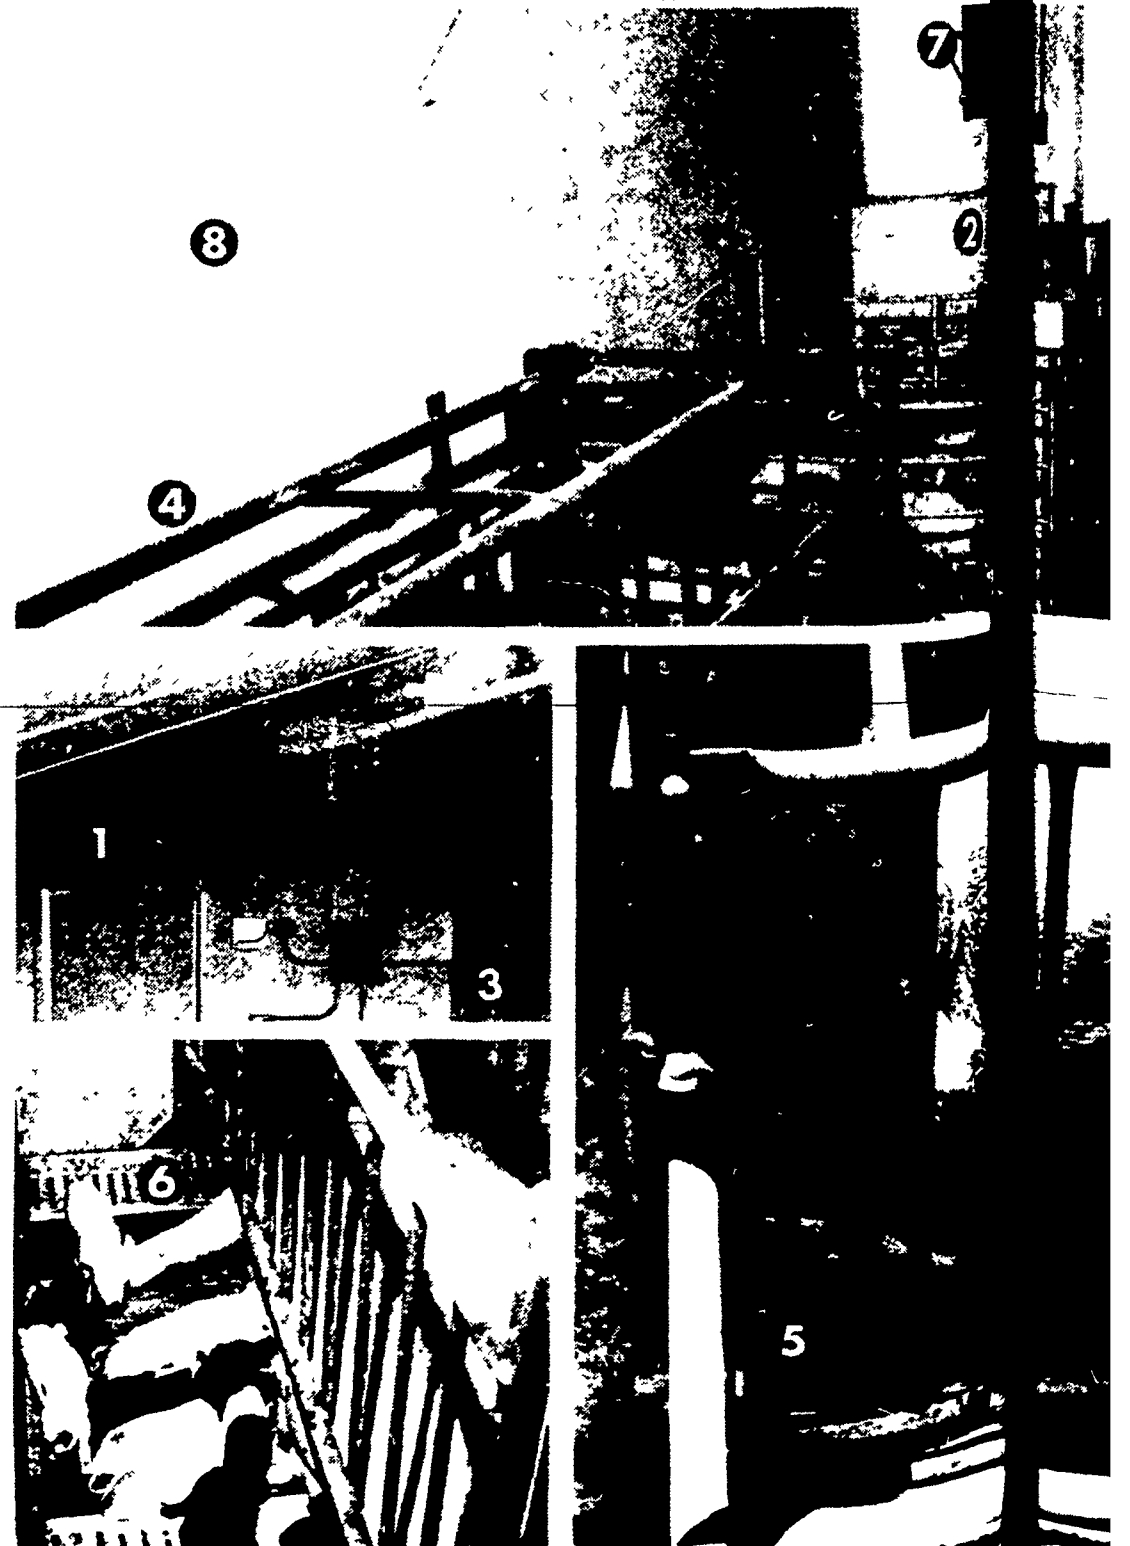

6 Aluminum T-slat sections are provided in the floor front and rear of each stall with oak floor in the center. Individual aluminum slats are 1" across the top and 1" high, with 3/8" spacing between slats.

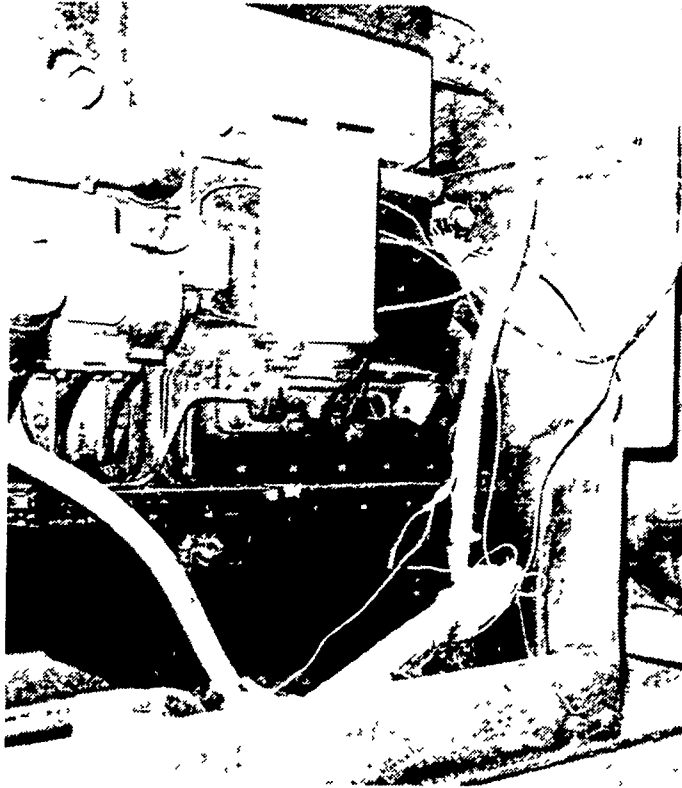

7 Choose from LP Gas or optional electric heating units. These 50,000 BTU fan-forced non-vented furnaces are engineered to uniformly heat all parts of the building even in severest weather. They also help keep relative humidity at healthful levels.

8 Rigid Fiberglas® board is permanently laminated to plywood interior walls. This provides extra strength, plus a surface that's easy to clean even with a hose for good disease prevention.

built in a poultry barn, automation has made it possible. Coping with the marketing developments and delicate financial balances are poultrymen such as Robah Hess, extreme right, who have hundreds of thousands of dollars invested in their producing facilities. One of the dangers of it all is the possibility of losing business ever since, but instead of the old coop, he has three long modern houses which measure 200, 300, and 500 feet in length. Hess got into a comparatively modern poultry barn in 1964 when he decided to have a long wooden structure built which turned out to be one of the first in the County equipped with a single row of cages. The layer house was built a section at a time, as it became affordable. Hess recalled how everyone was sure we were going to go broke by Summer, "but it hasn't happened yet during 22 years. Today that same building stands abandoned and weather beaten. It once housed up to 5000 layers in a single row of cages designed to keep individual performance records. "That was the thing they pushed at that time," Hess recollected. Work is underway to have the old structure replaced by a modern facility complete with decks of cages and automatic equipment.

A member of state and local poultry associations, Hess has been an independent producer throughout his years in the egg business. "I prefer it that way," he stated simply, "I take the most risks that way, but I also gain the most when there's something to gain." It's a philosophy which fits neatly into Hess's belief of not giving up and proceeding with a schedule. He markets his eggs through the R.W. Sauder Company of Lititz.

The experienced egg farmer has a price situation outlook which considers the prices of 1976 as having been "too high electric power. If the fans aren't working to provide fresh air constantly, the tens of thousands of layers in any one building would die within 20 minutes. That's why Hess and other poultrymen have big powerplants of their own, such as the one Hess is testing, above.

for the good of the industry." He foretells a sharp drop in the market which will harm some producers. "Anybody who didn't make money with eggs last year should seriously consider doing something else," he suggested.

One of the methods Hess uses to keep production fairly constant at his 70,000 hen operation, is to keep three different age groups of birds. He replaces just one house of birds at a time, instead of the entire flock. The production of 55,000 eggs per day requires a daily feed bill of approximately $1000.

The veteran poultryman has a few ideas which he hopes will someday be adopted by the entire industry. One idea is to have eggs marketed by the pound, rather than the dozen.

ATTENTION CORN GROWERS!

It's corn planting time again, we have fine quality seed corn to offer this year. If you pick and shell, we invite you to try 80-X or 790-A both are medium season. If you like full season try PA-8703 or 861. Both did extremely well last year. 806 has been a well liked hybrid for many years. For silage we recommend 900 with lots of grain. Prices range, $19 - $23 in flats and rounds from $11 - $19. We give quantity discounts. We have been growing seed corn for 30 years. We also have oats, clover and alfalfa seeds. We also sell Atrazine, Princep and other spray materials.

HOG PRODUCERS!

Have higher feed prices and lower market hog prices got you down? Are you concerned about how much it costs you to grow a pound of pork? If you are, take a moment to read some facts about the most successful hog feeding program ever developed by Master Mix Research.

DISCUSSION

The primary objective at Feed Research is the formulation of swine feed to produce pork at the lowest possible cost. The protein and energy portions of swine feeds represent 80 - 90 percent of the total feed cost. Therefore, the greatest potential for reducing the feed cost per pound of pork involves protein and energy. The research and development of FARMIX was directed at the protein portion to eliminate excess protein and maintain optimum performance at the same time.

Amino acids are the building blocks for protein in the animal's body. The amino acids are classified as essential and nonessential, but both groups are used for protein synthesis. The pig requires 10 essential amino acids to be present in the feed, but can make the nonessential amino acids. Historically, swine rations have been formulated to meet a certain crude protein level. More recently, total levels of a few essential amino acids, in addition to protein, have been used in formulation. The shortcomings with this type of formulation are: 1) The relationship between crude protein and individual amino acid levels and their availability to the pig are not necessarily in direct proportion; 2) Using a minimum crude protein level to meet the first limiting amino acid (lysine) may result in excesses of some other essential amino acids; 3) Formulation based on traditional protein value will be more volatile in price during periods of rising costs for protein ingredients.

When the above factors were taken into consideration, a new method of computer formulation was developed using the following basis:

1. The requirements for the ten essential amino acids were met and protein levels were disregarded.
2. The requirements for the ten essential amino acids were met according to a certain pattern (balance) to minimize excesses of some amino acids that could be detrimental to performance.
3. The level of Available Amino Acids in various feedstuffs was used in formulation. Total levels of amino acids are determined in the lab whereas Available Amino Acid values are determined with feeding trials.

Available Amino Acid Research

We started with the concept that swine feeds could be formulated on an available amino acid basis. Next came an intensive review of the scientific literature. Much credit should be given the many university and government researchers all over the world for their basic research on the available amino acid content of individual feed ingredients. However, a practical program was needed to supplement this basic research and translate it into usable form.

Three years of intensive research, with approximately 9,000 pigs, were required to refine the values for available amino acids. The thrust of the experimental work at Master Mix Research was directed at three areas:

1. Redefine the minimum amino acid requirements of the ten essential amino acids.
2. Determine the amino acid requirements according to a specific pattern (balance). In addition to meeting the minimum amino acid requirements, we found the ratios between certain amino acids to be very critical for maximum performance. A similar example is the importance of Ca:P ratio. The reduction of excessive amounts of some essential amino acids results in improved performance and reduced cost of gain.
3. Determine the availability of each essential amino acid for every major ingredient using the pig as the ultimate judge. Thus a new set of values (available amino acid levels) were developed and used which are different from the total (analytical) values found in the literature.
4. Determine pigs' requirements on the AAA basis.

With this information at hand, the computer formulation of swine feeds on the AAA basis was feasible. Rations formulated on this concept were tested repeatedly against rations formulated on a protein basis. The results were improved performance, leaner pigs and lower cost per pound of gain.

FARMIX Pork Program

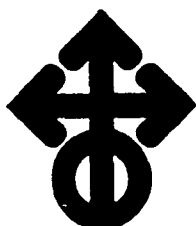

FARMIX represents the first application of the available amino acid concept for swine feeds. Some of the advantages of the new method of formulation (AAA basis) realized in the FARMIX program are the following:

1. Excesses of essential amino acids are minimized.
2. Ingredients are evaluated on their true contribution of amino acids for protein synthesis.
3. Performance of the pig is more consistent.
4. The impact of ingredient price fluctuation is reduced because of increased ingredient flexibility.
5. FARMIX is manufactured in crumbled form for more efficient handling, mixing and distribution.
6. FARMIX is a flexible program since only one concentrate and two pacs (Swine Breeder Pac and FARMIX Starter Pac) are required for the entire herd.

The amino acid density in FARMIX was selected to give excellent performance when mixed at the recommended rates. Under good management, the pork producer can expect average daily gains of 1.72 and feed to gain ratios of 3.08 when pigs are fed from 50 pounds to market weight.

Antique farm equipment assn. tours Smithsonian Institution

WEST CHESTER, Pa. - Last month the newly organized Chester County Antique Farm Equipment Association sponsored a bus trip to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. A group of historic-minded farmers with Nevin Myers of Chester Springs as president, the Association is interested in preserving and demonstrating farm equipment that was used before the time of many people living today. All the equipment is individually owned with examples of nearly every piece of equipment used on Chester County farms during the past 200 years.

Approximately 50 people connected with the group took part in the tour of the Smithsonian.

The first building visited was the 1876 Centennial building, which contained many of the original exhibits that were part of the 1876 Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia. Among them were household items, industrial machinery, chemicals, pharmaceuticals, confections, nautical items, glass enclosed carriages, and many other items used in America 100 years ago.

Eighteen-seventy-six was the age of steam, and on exhibit were engines ranging from giant steam engines used to power industrial plants down to fractional horse power engines used to power small appliances, such as ventilating fans.

In the nearby History and Technology building, many exhibits of early Americana are displayed.

Ox-drawn plows from the early 1700's up to a 20-year-old rubber-tired cotton harvester were included in the agricultural exhibit. Tilling, planting, and harvesting equipment of the 1800's was also displayed.

An unscheduled surprise for the group was a visit to the restoration shops where this old equipment is returned as closely to its original condition as possible.

John Deere
40-hp 2040Barnyard specialist?
Yes, but...

A glance at the 2040 tells you this one's much more than "just" a barnyard specialist. Sure — the 2040's physical size combined with its straight-line shuttle shift, power steering, hydraulics, differential lock and many more features make it a real barnyard specialist.

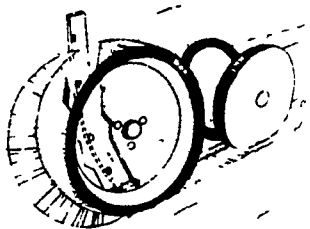

But a draft-sensing 3-point hitch, "live" PTO, variable-speed diesel engine and 8-speed transmission tell you the 2040 is equally prepared for many jobs outside the confines of the barnyard.

Hang a loader on the front or a plow on the rear — that's only two of many choices. You can count on the 40-hp 2040 to get most any job done.

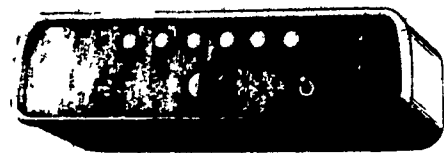

Stop in today and see this agile 40-hp "jack-of-all-trades" 2040. Regardless of the size or type of your operation, it'll be time well spent.

The home and place of work for one of Berks County's outstanding farmers is this farm and mill, which have been in the Dreibelbis family for four generations.

OYF involved with dairy cows and old mill

By LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Berks County Reporter
SHOEMAKERSVILLE, Pa. - Lloyd Dreibelbis, part owner of W.H. Dreibelbis Sons Farm and Mill, was recently named Outstanding Young Farmer over 30 by the Kutztown Young Farmers Association. Lloyd along with his brothers, Earl and Harvey have had the historic operation in their family for four generations, dating back to 1868 when it was purchased from Enoch Wartenlaft by their great grandfather, Simon.

The farm and mill complex consisted of 160 acres, a barn, two houses, and the mill. The Dreibelbis family has successfully operated the complex ever since. Uniquely, they have managed to keep a treasured old - time "air" about the operation while being progressive at the same time.

Lloyd, who manages the dairy with the assistance of his wife, Betty, and some part time helpers, is very active in several farm organizations. His brother, Earl, manages the mill with the help of his grandson, Bryan. The other brother, Harvey, lives in New Jersey.

As far as the brothers know, dairy cows have always been on the premises. Up until 1929 herd consisted mainly of Holsteins, but this herd was wiped out by TB. Thereafter the Dreibelbises changed to registered Guernsey cattle and have kept with them ever since. At the time of the switch it was advantageous, they said, due to the higher butterfat content of the Guernsey milk.

Lloyd presently farms about 200 acres, a little of which is rented, and manages 81 head of dairy cattle. They have been growing wheat for certified seed for 35 years. On the average they use about 40 acres for this purpose. Approximately 30 acres are planted in corn, the rest consists mainly of pastures and alfalfa. The corn is used for silage and feed for the dry cows and youngstock. Commercial feed is used for the milking string, Lloyd told Lancaster Farming.

"There are 44 cows lactating at present," said Lloyd. The herd average for 1976 was 9,933 pounds of milk and 447 pounds of butterfat. "It was down a little from 1975", he continued. The

local dairy and sold as Guernsey milk.

The barn is kept in immaculate condition. When it was modernized, a pipeline was installed to transfer the milk from the dumping station to the bulk tank. The cows are kept on pasture as much as possible.

Lately Lloyd has been using natural service for breeding, because he said. "We have been having problems settling the cows with A.I." They are using three bulls at present. The main sire is "Chedco Hollyhocks Darimost," who came from Berlin, Mass.

Most of the bulls they use come from other herds, but they seldom buy any replacement cows. "Once in a while we will use one of our own bulls," Lloyd said.

The Dreibelbises oc-asionally sell stock for 4-H projects in the area, and are always willing to talk or lend a hand.

Presently, Lloyd is treasurer of the Berks County Guernsey Breeders Association and the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders Association. Lloyd also participates as a director of the Berks County Dairy Farmers Association and is a member of the Kutztown Young Farmers Association.

Lloyd, as well as the other members of the family take pride in their heritage. They related that the family business was incorporated following the death of their mother. The four sons which were surviving stockholders. At the time, a corporation was more advantageous than a partnership, Earl told Lancaster Farming.

Earl and Bryan produce cake and pastry flour from locally grown soft winter wheat by the "roller" process. The flour is sold within a 50 mile radius. The mill also produces roasted stone ground corn meal by the use of an original mill stone. "We have the only operating mill stone in the area," Earl said.

"The mill was first powered by water and was later switched to steam," Bryan proudly related. "Now it is powered by a Diesel engine which came from Chicago in the 1940's," he continued.

Another long - standing tradition still in use at the mill, which is rarely if ever seen today, is the barter system. The Dreibelbises still barter with some of the local farmers in the area, young and old alike. Fertilizer and seed are also available at the mill.

The mill has been kept in excellent repair. Most of the equipment used is still the original, even some of the broad leather belts which are used to run the machinery date back to the late 19th century.

Bryan feels the Bicentennial helped the business to a degree. "It made people aware of the importance of their heritage," he said. "I feel the business will even become better in the next ten years," he continued, "at least that's my opinion, the public is turning back to the old ways in many instances."

Cattle owners alerted to referendum

By DIETER KRIEG
LANCASTER - Legislation which would enable cattlemen to formulate their own beef advertising policies was passed by Congress a year ago. Now, beef producers themselves will have the opportunity to vote for or against it. The referendum takes place sometime this Spring. No official date has been set yet. Registration procedures at ASCS offices have not been finalized yet either due to a delay in Washington D.C.

Aims of the program, if it is passed, are similar to goals set forth by other branches of agriculture. The dairy industry, for example, uses its generated revenues to promote their products, fund nutrition research, and seek new markets. Aside from dairy farmers, potato growers, cotton producers, fruit growers, and poultrymen already have advertising and promotion projects.

Although voluntary and separated from the government, opinions on the issue are still widely split. Some are enthusiastically in favor of it, claiming "it's about time the beef industry realizes the importance of promoting its own product," while others question the value of it entirely. One cattleman, for example, has reservations about the order because it would help to promote foreign beef as well as the USA variety. Beef imports are expected to account for seven per cent of sales this year as it is.

Penn State Extension economist H. Louis Moore describes 1976 as a year during which the "risks were greater than rewards." Cattlemen weren't making much money, and often lost profits entirely. The opinions on the Beef Research and Information Act vary accordingly. "Do we stimulate the business with our own funds, or do we keep what little we made for sure and play it safe?" seems to be the big question for many. As of now it's also the big question for the entire beef industry.

The Extension Service reminds farmers that if they intend to vote on the matter, they must first of all register at their county ASC office. Lancaster County Agent Max Smith wrote the following in his "Now is the Time" column a few weeks ago: "All beef and dairy producers should be taking a look at the forthcoming national referendum as a self - help check - off program to help the entire beef industry. Both dairy and beef cattle owners are involved. The starting point is to sign up at the local ASC office before being eligible to vote later this Spring. This may be a controversial program, but producers should be evaluating the proposals and then fulfill their duty of voting as they see fit. Don't let someone else do your thinking and voting for you."

If the promotional programs of the Beef Task Force, an organization which is drumming up support for the referendum, are to be put into action, an estimated $30 to $40 million are required. That money will be generated at the point of sale by deducting three-tenths of one per cent of the value added each time the animal changes hands. Each owner is thereby paying his "fair share," but only the packer collects the dues. Individual producers who do not wish to participate in the program may sign forms to have their deductions returned to them. The program is voluntary and run by the beef industry itself, emphasize supporters of the Act. The government, which passed enabling legislation, will be nothing more than a "watchdog" over the funds, they say.

Misunderstood by some is the fact that anyone who owns a cow or steer is eligible to vote on this matter. That includes dairymen, 4-H'ers, and FFA students. The point is, if a farmer or student has an animal which may some day go for beef, that individual is eligible to vote. What's more, if the referendum passes, deductions will automatically be made from his check. The abstaining farmer must then file for exemption.

The key points to the plan, as put forward earlier this year are:

1. Uniform collection at point of sale.
2. Collection at the rate of 0.3 per cent of value added.
3. A beef board of 68 members will preside over the program.
4. The program is voluntary with refund provisions.

5. Currently the legislation states that not more than per cent can ever be deducted from the value added at point of sale.

6. Voting is restricted to cattle owners, one vote per entity.

7. Everyone expecting a vote must first register.

8. At least 50 per cent of those registering must show up at that they vote.

9. A two-thirds majority required for passing.

10. Ten per cent of money collected will be returned to the organizations promoting the effort.

York Holstein breeders meet

YORK, Pa. — Avalong Farms, York R7, hosted the annual Spring barn meeting of the York County Holstein Association. Guest speaker for the afternoon get-together was Waynesboro veterinarian, David "Doc" Hagen.

Hagen's presentation focused on breeding problems faced by dairymen, and included a number of management tips on cow health. He stressed the importance of properly caring for dry cows.

"Most breeding problems start with the dry cow," believes Hagen. "She should be fed properly, with plenty of hay, and closely watched for signs of illness."

When a cow is getting ready to calve, put her somewhere you can keep an eye on her. And, if you notice her starting to have a calving difficulty, don't wait until it's too late to get help," urged the vet. He also recommended giving a dry cow time to adjust to the surroundings in which she will give birth. Moving her there at the last minute may upset her and throw her off her impending delivery schedule, causing the possibility of both a lost calf and a sick cow.

"Be especially alert for signs of milk fever," Hagen warned. "The cow's ears get cold and she'll lose her appetite. If you suspect an impending case of milk fever, get a bottle of calcium in that animal."

Hagen emphasized that any cow that does experience a calving difficulty, or one that does not clean properly forward, must be treated on a follow-up basis, or long-term breeding will likely develop.

"Check a cow at 30 days after calving to see if she might be infected, or if any other reproductive problems are evident," he added.

The veterinarian offered another tip to dairymen about selecting sires.

"Pay attention to breeding intervals of the sire's dam when you're selecting a bull for breeding. If she's a regular, dependable breeding animal, you may be able to improve your breeding interval genetically," Hagen explained.

During the meeting it was brought up that the York Holstein Club is hosting a celebration party for Woodbine Ivanhoe Mollie at the Farm Show Building on the evening of March 31. Mollie is the first cow in Pennsylvania ever to classify the high score of 97 points, and the 13th animal in breed history to collect the near-perfect score. A beef-barbecue will be served, beginning at 5:30 p.m., followed by the program featuring live entertainment starting at 7:30 p.m.

A bus trip on April 5 is also scheduled by the county association. Destination is northern Virginia, where several registered Holstein breeding farms will be visited. Included in the schedule are Round Oak Farms, Foxlease Farms, E.B. Lee Farm, and Harview Farm. York County dairymen interested in reservations for the tour are urged to contact Extension Agent David Norman at the Court House.

Easter sales cater to 'old country traditions

Little Cherie Stauffer, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marlon Stauffer, Ephrata R4, is really going to miss this hugable goat kid after the Easter sales. Cherie is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Stauffer, who have raised goats for nearly 20 years.

By JOANNE SPAHR
EPHRATA, Pa.—Now that Spring is here, Easter is not far away. And, at this time of year, we all look forward to Easter dresses, Easter bonnets, the Easter bunny, and most of all, the religious celebrations and services that are the focal point of this holiday.

Mrs. Ivan Stauffer, Ephrata R3, looks forward to all this as well as one other event with which she is connected — Easter sales. Easter sales are held at livestock markets every year at this time. They consist of large numbers of lambs and goat kids which are purchased for marketing in larger cities such as Philadelphia or New York. According to packers who purchase the animals, the majority of the meat goes to Greeks and Italians for use in their holiday celebrations.

Mrs. Stauffer, who has raised goats for 20 years, says a milk fed kid is much the same as a vealer with its tender white meat. At market this year she expects to get a fairly good price for her animals.

"We may get as much as $30 for a six-week-old kid," she explained.

Although she does raise a few kids for the purpose of the Easter sale, Mrs.

Stauffer and her family did not originally become involved with goats for marketing.

"I started to raise goats when I had gall bladder trouble," she says with a big grin. "The only milk I could drink was goat's milk, and I've been drinking it ever since."

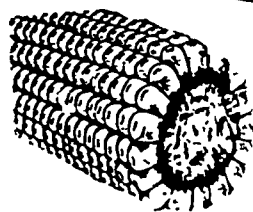

The Stauffers keep their goats as pets, and everyone in the family is fond of their goat kids, especially the grandchildren.

The Stauffer herd is comprised of crossbreeds

Feed Creep Wean No. 3

If you're in the business of farrowing pigs, there is only one sure way to save on feed costs — right from the start. That's why Vigortone developed Creep Wean No. 3.

This highly fortified pre-mix makes it possible for you to build your own 18% pre-starter ration for about half the cost of a commercial product.

We'll apply exact amounts of micronutrients uniformly.

Today's high-yielding varieties take more micronutrients out of the soil than nature can put back in. This is why you often get only average yields despite heavy fertilizing of N-P-K.

What's needed is often just a few ounces of zinc, iron, copper, manganese or some other trace element, per acre. In fact, too much can be just as harmful as too little.

That's why ARCADIAN® liquid is the ideal solution for applying micronutrients. With the SLF® system, we pre-scription mix a liquid fertilizer to supply just the right amounts of both major and minor plant nutrients. It's based on a complete soil analysis of each field. And delivers the same analysis in every drop — uniformly from one end of a field to the other.

So if you're not getting the yields you should, see us. Micronutrients and Arcadian liquid could be the solution for you.

MCM notes excellence

COCKEYSVILLE, Md.—Long-term memberships and excellence in milk quality were recognized by Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc., during the luncheon at their annual meeting at the Hunt Valley Inn.

In 1918, dairymen in the Baltimore milkshed founded the Maryland State Dairymen's Association to bring about a more orderly method of marketing their milk. Seventeen years later, MSDA changed its name to Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers. Since 1974, MCMP honors yearly those family memberships which have been with cooperative for 500 continuous years.

Six Maryland family memberships received plaques during this year's presentations at the awards luncheon. They are: H. Leroy and Eugenia S. Thomas, Whiteford R1; Mary F. Drennan, Monkton; Howard and Moore Pickett, New Windsor; Donald and Charles M. Cole, Hampstead; Michaels Home, Inc., Taneytown R1; James and George Reeves, Farm 1, Forest Hill.

Awards for Excellence in Quality Production are presented to members who qualify under a very strict set of requirements based on bacteria counts and inspections. During 1976, fourteen memberships met those rigid requirements and received plaques commending their achievements.

Excellence awards were presented to: James and Elsie Bartgis, Frederick R3; Robert and Norma Grove, Greencastle R1, Pa.; Melvin and Regina Leppo, Sykesville; Robert and Pamela Saylor, Adamstown R1; John and Margaret Speak, Taneytown R1; Paul L. Doody, Sr. and Sons, Mt. Airy R1; Richard and Carolyn Helbig, Oakland R3; George and Helen Owings, Westminster; Raymond and Mabel Schrock, Grantsville; Arthur S. Tracey and Edward H. Ensor, Freeland; Edge Hill Farms, Inc., Quicksburg, Va.; Wilson and Nancy Jones, Pylesville; Martin L. Poole, Thurmont R3; and Dennis, Mary L. and Robert H. Smith, Westminster.

and nubians, which are known for their Roman noses and floppy ears. Since the Stauffers don't live on a farm, the animals are kept in a small barn and shelter near the house.

One idiosyncrasy of the animals which Mrs. Stauffer tells about is their fanaticism for cleanliness.

"Oh, they're clean," she says with wide eyes and gesture of her hand. "If it's raining outside, they won't budge from the barn and get their feet dirty. In fact, if it's dripping outside, they'll know it before you do," she exclaims.

"Oh, I'd like to keep them all," she says with enthusiasm "but it would get too 'goaty' out there." So, while they do grow attached to their lovable pets, they are forced to sell them for lack of housing.

According to the owner of the sales stables where the animals will be marketed, the turnout of goats and lambs for the sales could be anywhere from 400 - 800 animals.

"We don't really know how many there will be," he said, "but there will be a lot of lambs and goats for those sales."

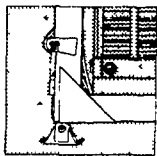

While there is no theological reason behind the tradition of eating lamb or goat for Easter, the clergy of the Greek Orthodox Church concede that there may be some religious symbolism involved. However, other individuals of the Greek nationality explain that since the Greeks have very little beef available to them, eating lamb has simply evolved as a tradition because this was the only meat available in the home country.

At any rate, the tradition has evolved for one reason or another, and the Easter sales have developed to cater to the need.

Unique health testing program set up by PFA

The Women's committee of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association is sponsoring a health testing program for its members. It is totally new and unique program which will begin on April 4 in Lancaster County. Members will be tested by appointments scheduled over the phone.

Lancaster County Farmers Association President Earl Newcomer indicated the Lancaster County has been chosen as one of the six initial locations in the state of Pennsylvania. "Because it is a pilot county, it is important that everyone understand and benefit from the program," he stated.

The chairman of the Lancaster PFA Women's Committee Marian Breneman said that her group will be handling appointments by phone, and she encouraged all members to give the program serious consideration.

Samuel Smith, program coordinator for American Health Profiles, Inc., who provides the testing service, described the testing, the mobile unit, and the procedures.

The large medical van is equipped with the latest biomedical testing equipment, capable of performing comprehensive medical check-ups in 45 minutes. A total of 22 tests are given which yield over 110 medical criteria.

A team of five paramedical technicians provide testing services. The tests include chest X-rays, facial X-rays, electrocardiogram (EKG, or heart measurement), lung function test, hearing test, eye tests (including test of glaucoma), blood chemistry, hematology, urinalysis, TB skin tests, and others.

Smith continued, "Once the data is compiled, it is sent to a profile center where it is reviewed by a team of eight physicians, such as a specialist in his field. After it is reviewed, the entire profile is sent to the participant's personal physician. The participant is also contacted, and if any abnormalities have been detected, he is advised to consult with his doctor concerning the findings."

Says Newcomer, "The PFA has been helping our members for years. We feel the health of the members and his family is just as important as the other services we provide. The entire program is convenient, comprehensive, and inexpensive - only $70 for adults and $45 for children ages 5 - 15."

Appointments will be made to prevent long lines and waiting, and all members will be contacted by telephone. The Women's Committee has contacted other organizations in Lancaster County who may want to offer this service to their members.

Spud stocks up 35 pct.

HARRISBURG—Stocks of potatoes held on March 1 in Pennsylvania by growers, local dealers and processors totaled 1,750,000 hundredweight (cwt.). This is 35 per cent higher than a year ago and represents one-fourth of the state's 1976 production. Disappearance during February amounted to 1,000,000 cwt.

Stocks of potatoes for all uses held in storage by growers, local dealers and processors in the nation's Fall production areas totaled a record high 109.5 million cwt. on hand a year earlier, and is 5.4 million cwt. or five percent more than March 1, 1975.

Disappearance of the 1976 fall crop to March 1, 1977 totaled 188.0 million cwt. (excluding Nevada), up 11 per cent from the 169.4 million cwt. moved during the comparable period a year earlier.

According to Russell C. Erb, professor of organic chemistry, drinking champagne from a lady's slipper does improve the flavor as the nitrogen in the leather accentuates the flavor and aroma of the beverage.

Penn State has Dairy Day

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. — A discussion of research currently being conducted in the areas of dairy nutrition, management, and genetics and an open house of all dairy production facilities at The Pennsylvania State University will be features of a Dairy Day to be held April 6.

According to Dr. Lawrence W. Specht, Extension dairy specialist and program chairman, the program will get underway at 9 a.m. with registration in the J. O. Keller Building on the University Park Campus.

The morning session will focus on nutrition of the high producing cow; forages for heifers, steers, and cows; calf nutrition; control of reproduction in the female; and genetic and mastitis research. Presentations will be made by College of Agriculture faculty members.

During the afternoon program, participants will take an in-depth look at studies being conducted at the Dairy Production Center, Dairy Breeding Research Center, Milk Testing Laboratory, Forage Testing Laboratory, and the Calf Research Farm.

Included will be discussions on effluent studies; methane gas generator; milk cooling; reuse of wash solutions; vacuum stability; heifer raising; automated testing for butterfat, protein, and somatic cells; and calf housing and nutrition.

Following the formal sessions, the dairy science faculty, staff, and graduate students will be on hand to answer questions and visit individually with those attending.

Dr. Specht points out that advanced registration is not required, however, it will aid the committee in planning the day's activities. Registration forms are available at all County Extension Service Offices.

Tox-O-Wik Dryers

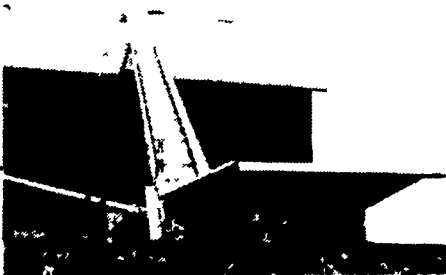

Model 270 - 250 bu cap
Model 370 - 350 bu cap
Model 570 - 500 bu cap

Two Basic Processes are involved in drying grain with a GT TOX-O-WIK Recirculating Batch Grain Dryer. These two processes function independently, yet simultaneously to dry grain as evenly and gently as possible

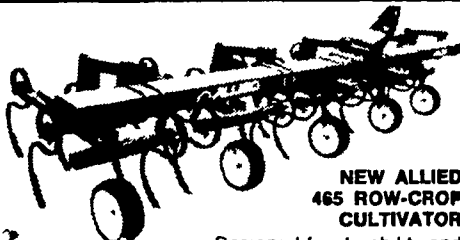

One of the Processes is the movement of the grain itself. The round bin and cone shaped bottom are a part of the GT TOX-O-WIK Dryer design for making this process more efficient. The patented agitator arms keep the grain constantly moving downward. As the grain reaches the bottom, it is picked up by the recirculating auger which carries it to the top of the dryer and discharges it back into the dryer

The Other Process involved in drying is the movement of the heated air. Heat from the burner combines with air supplied by the fan. This heated air is then forced into the plenum chamber and out into the moving grain.

The GT TOX-O-WIK Dryer, simple in design and operation, is built of high quality materials and factory pre-tested for years of trouble free drying. It's your assurance of dependability and service for years to come

Congressman Walker introduces 'Barley Farm Amendment'

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Bob Walker last week proposed a subcommittee amendment which would require the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to conduct a special land evaluation survey to find alternatives to using prime agricultural lands for landfill operations. Referring to his legislation as "The Barley Farm Amendment," Walker stated, "Our area is home to some of the finest and highest yielding agricultural land in the United States. The current situation surrounding the Barley farm points to the critical need for the Federal government to undertake a study of this type immediately." Walker said.

"While my amendment will not solve the immediate problem for the Barleys, it will assure that the problem faced by the Barleys will become a vehicle for national action," Walker added.

"If we as a nation learned anything from this past winter, it's that our natural resource problems don't go away if we just ignore them. This same lesson applies to another valuable natural resource...farmland.

"I believe we need to start now to develop alternatives to using this precious resource as a depository for solid wastes," he said.

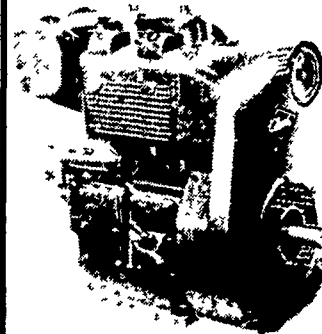

Walker has proposed the "Barley Farm Amendment" in the Environment and Atmosphere Subcommittee of which he is a member. This subcommittee is responsible for budgetary authorizations for EPA.

Under Walker's proposal, the EPA could use as much as $50,000 to conduct the special survey and report the findings to the Congress before July 1, 1978.

500 attend Penn Manor awards banquet

By JOANNE SPAHR
MILLERSVILLE, Pa. - Over 500 members and supporters of the Manor Chapter of the Future Farmers of America gathered at the Penn Manor High School cafeteria to participate in the 17th annual parent - member banquet on March 9. Set up to honor the members for the achievements they have reached throughout the year, the evening's festivities included the bestowing of nearly 60 awards.

Randy Ranck, Quarryville, who is Pennsylvania's FFA president, brought greetings from the state organization. A second guest speaker was Henry Givler, eastern region vocational consultant. Givler credited the success of FFA to four groups of individuals - enthusiastic FFA members, parents, school administrators and involved teachers.

The first honor to be handed out during the evening was the FFA creed contest award. Sheryl Charles, Millersville R1, was the recipient of this honor, and as part of her acceptance, she recited the creed for those present.

This year's Star Greenhand was also a young lady. Kay Shertzer, Millersville R1, won this honor, which is presented to the highest qualifying incoming FFA member. Steve McMichael, Pequea R1, was chosen as the outstanding chapter degree member, and for this achievement won the Star Chapter Farmer award.

Six honorary members were inducted into the chapter as part of the ceremony. These individuals received this honor as recognition for their services to the FFA. Those inducted were Richard Neff, Millersville R1, Paul Murry, Washington Boro R1, Richard Falk, Millersville R1, Ben Souders, Millersville R1, Robert Neff,

Millersville R1, and Doris Hesenheiter, Lancaster. The chapter also had 10 Red Rose Farmers, with Jim Breneman, Columbia R1 receiving the highest honor - Red Rose Farmer. Dr. Elmer J. Berkebile, superintendent of the Penn Manor, High School presented nine members of the chapter with honors for earning the Keystone Farmer Degree this year.

In brief comments previous to the presentation of the Keystone Farmer honors, Berkebile noted that in 10 years Penn Manor's vocational agriculture enrollment has doubled, and that the school system has hopes of adding additional facilities to accommodate the expansion. He also noted that, statistically, Penn Manor should only have two or three Keystone Farmers per year, but that this year they exceeded any past records with nine state winners.

The chapter also had an American Farmer this year. Cliff Charles, Lancaster R2, was the fourth individual in the chapter's history to receive this honor.

Other chapter awards handed out during the evening were: the Bankers Award which went to Bob Hess, Lancaster R2, and the Outstanding Farming Program and the DeKalb Award which both went to Craig Harnish, Lancaster R6.

Foundation awards were presented to the following students: Kevin Kilheffer, Millersville R1, sheep; Carl Lindeman, Millersville R1, swine; Bob Hess, livestock; John Myers, Lancaster R6 beef; Steve Shertzer, dairy; Jay Neff, Millersville R1 crops; Jay Shertzer, farm safety; Craig Harnish, mechanics; and Dave Charles, Columbia R2, ag placement. This year's winner of the crop production award Kevin Kilheffer.

Along with plaques, trophies, and certificates, live animals were also given out at the Thursday evening banquet. Nelson Breneman, Columbia R2; Richard Haines, Columbia R2; and Gordon Long, Columbia R2, became the new owners of this year's chain gilts. Chain lambs were awarded to Tim Frey, Washington Boro R1; and Paul Myers, Lancaster R1; Kay Shertzer received the chain calf, and this year's bee hive winner was Mike Eckman. Ray Caldwell,

Lancaster Farming, Saturday, March 26, 1977-107

Millersville R1, received the Outstanding Senior award. The proficiency award in mechanics was earned by Gary Long, Columbia R2.

The highest earning orange salesman in the freshman class was Nelson Breneman, and in the senior high classes was Carl Lindeman. Also awarded during the evening were the hunting contest trophies. Frank Hess, Washington Boro R1, was the freshman recipient, and Jim Risser, Washington Boro R1, was the senior high winner.

The final event of the evening before adjournment was the installation of new officers. They are: Robert Bachman, Millersville R1, president; Jay Neff, vice president; Lewis Witmer, Millersville R1, secretary; Steve McMichael, corresponding secretary; Jim Breneman, treasurer; Steve Shertzer, reporter; Janie Peiffer, Pequea R1, sentinel; Nelson Breneman, parliamentarian; Kay Shertzer, historian; Fred Charles, Columbia R1, chaplain; and Carl Lindeman, student advisor.

QUARRYVILLE, Pa. — In an address to his home Future Farmer of America Chapter on March 17, Randy Ranck, Quarryville, 1977 state FFA president, thanked the assembled group for its support and cooperation over the past eight months in which he has served as a state officer. Ranck, who was a guest speaker at the Solanco Chapter FFA parent-member awards banquet held at the high school, also stated that FFA offers a means to promote the development of values and ideals, and the sharing of new ideas. He said it provides the ambition and drive to set goals and accept responsibilities, as well, so that members can become effective contributors to the society and economy.

"We need to remember the things of value in the past, work hard in the present, and plan for the future," he concluded.

Nearly 300 members, parents, and guests were in attendance to witness the presentation of awards to FFA members, community businessmen, and farmers. Star award winners honored were Vickie Warfel, Star Keystone Farmer; Charles Blevins, Star Red Rose Agri-Businessman; Sam Long, Star Red Rose Farmer; Tom Kirk, Star Chapter Farmer; and Tina Bucher, Star Greenhand.

Keystone Degree winners cited were Richard Drumm, Jr., Lee Ferguson, Tom Jackson, James Krantz, Bruce Kreider, Kenneth Wiker, Robert Zander, and Vickie Warfel, Star Keystone Farmer.

Lancaster County Farm Women Society 20 presented Solanco Chapter president Bruce Kreider with its annual award which is presented to an outstanding FFA member.

NEW YORK, N.Y. - The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) named 12 new members to the National Potato Promotion

Board and reappointed 20. The board administers the Potato Research and Promotion Plan, developed to increase consumption and expand domestic and foreign markets for potatoes. The plan was authorized in January 1971 by the Potato Research and Promotion Act.

Officials of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service said the action brings the board membership to 90, representing the 48 contiguous states.

Under the plan each state is entitled to one member, plus an additional member for each five million hundredweight of potato production above the first five million hundredweight, based on the average of the state's three preceding years' production.

Board members are potato producers, nominated by producers, and are responsible to the Secretary of Agriculture. The terms of approximately one-third of the board's members expire each year. The 32 appointees named will serve three-year terms which start April 1.

The board's organizational meeting will be held April 5-6 at the Marriott Hotel, Denver, Colo. At that time officers will be elected and recommendations made for the plan's sixth year of operation.

Ferd W. Irish of Coudersport is the new Pennsylvania appointee.

All-America vegetable selections ready for '77

NEWARK, Del. - Seeds and plants of four new vegetable varieties will be available for planting this Spring, according to David Tatnall, Extension garden specialist at the University of Delaware. These new hybrids include a savoy-type cabbage, an unusual new tart-shaped squash which can be eaten raw, a disease-resistant spinach and an early-maturing, bush-type pumpkin. They were judged to be the best introductions in competitive trials across the United States.

A cabbage hybrid called "Savoy Ace" is the 1977 winner of the rarely-awarded Gold Medal. It was judged to be the best savoy or crumpled leaf cabbage developed to date. It matures about a week earlier than "Savoy King," a 1965 All-America selection. Its leaves are more distinctly textured than the earlier variety. Heads are nearly round, with a slight top and bottom flattening. For best flavor, harvest is recommended at four to four and one-half pound weights.

"Savoy" type cabbage is prized by many for both coleslaw and cooking. In coleslaw its waffle-textured leaves don't pack down and become soggy, and its unique, delicate flavor is felt to surpass that of ordinary cabbage. In cooking, this type of cabbage has an eye-appealing deep green color which many people favor.

Silver medal winner in this year's competition was "Melody," a spinach hybrid. Plants are large and semi-erect with round, semi-savoyed or crumpled leaves which are large, thick, and dark green in color. It was developed for home gardens where its hybrid vigor and bred-in disease resistance should result in substantially higher yields than from old standard varieties. "Melody" is resistant to downy mildew and cucumber mosaic virus 1, both crippling plant diseases.

Spinach declined somewhat in popularity when the "Popeye the Sailor" fad wore off. But with the booming interest in fresh vegetables for salads and sandwiches, as well as lightly-steamed "Chinese fashion," spinach is coming back fast. Remember, cautions Tatnall, this is definitely a cool-weather vegetable. Plant it in early Spring or it will quickly bolt to seed. It can also be sown in late Summer for Fall harvest.

Salad fans should be delighted with another of the 1977 winners, a squash hybrid called "Scallopini."

You can slice or dice the young fruits of this new variety for salads or dips. The raw fruit is tender, sweet, and nut-like in flavor. It can also be cooked like zucchini. Steamed, fried or baked in casseroles, the taste is similar.

There's no other squash quite like "scallopini." Its fruits are about the shape of dessert tarts - flattened, with fluted edges, like the scallop or patty pan squash favored in southern and western states. However, the fruits of the new hybrid have inherited an attractive deep green skin from their zucchini parentage, rather than the greenish-white of scallop squash.

Home gardeners and farmers who grow Jack O'Lanterns will both benefit from the earliness bred into "Spirit" pumpkin, fourth of this year's winners. Ten to 15-pound fruits are ready for picking 10-days earlier than standard Halloween varieties. This advantage can be very important where cool, moist Summers delay maturity. In addition, the shapely, symmetrical fruits will keep for months if unbruised and stored in a dry area.

The semi-bush vines of "Spirit" spread to about three feet across, set on crown fruits and then throw out short runners to cover a diameter of about five feet. Less space per vine is required than with runner-type pumpkins, which mean more fruits can be produced per unit of garden or farm space. Fruits are bright orange. The flesh is thick and bright yellow, excellent for pies. The fruits are deep oval in shape with slight flattened bud and stem end and indistinct ribbing, which makes them good subject for Halloween artistry.

Thank You

FOR MAKING OUR ANNUAL SPRING SALE A HUGE SUCCESS

Meat judging contest held by county FFA

LANCASTER, Pa. - Thirty-one individuals and seven schools participated in the Lancaster County Future Farmers of America meats judging contest held at Kunzlers Meats in Lancaster, recently.

Individual winners in the contest were, Tony Eberly, of Ephrata, first place; Don Good, of Ephrata, second place; Gary Snader, of New Holland, third place; Mary Bitler, Solanco, fourth place; and Daniel Witwer, of New Holland, fifth place.

The overall first place team was the Grassland chapter which consisted of Gary Snader, Daniel Witwer, and Linford Weaver. Ephrata High School won the second place title and Pequea alley the third.

The contest consisted of three phases of judging. Contestants were asked to place a class of beef ribs and a class of hams, and identify 25 retail cuts of meat consisting of beef, lamb, and fresh and smoked pork. The third segment of the contest involved grading beef carcasses for both quality and yield grades.

Individual winners were selected on the basis of their total score in all three aspects of judging while the team title was decided by adding the scores of the three team members who were designated prior to the contest.

Ribbons were awarded to team members on each of the three top teams and the top five individuals also received ribbons. In addition Garden Spot won the right to display the rotating trophy until next year because of their first place title.

NFU asks for higher price supports

SAN ANTONIO, TEX. — The National Farmers Union's 75th Diamond Jubilee convention, held here March 5-9, called for immediate action through executive order and by legislation through Congress to increase price support loan levels for the 1977 crop year.

Requesting target prices established at 100 per cent of parity, the farm organization urged that price support loans be increased to 90 per cent of parity.

The convention called for a resale program for storable commodities with provisions for renewing price support contracts "which provides the producers with the option of maintaining control of the commodity to include rotation of grain to insure maintenance of quality."

The farm group stated that stocks held by the Commodity Credit Corporation should not be released into the market at less than 110 per cent of parity. In addition, the National Farmers Union recommends storage payments in any year when the average prices received by farmers have not exceeded 120 per cent of the support price up to 100 per cent of parity.

The convention is further urging the federal government to initiate negotiations with other nations to develop a system of international commodity agreements containing minimum and maximum pricing provisions.

Together with the immediate farm policy objectives, the National Farmers Union convention delegates adopted a comprehensive policy program dealing with a broad range of issues, including national health care, environment, natural resources, energy and education.

The farm organization's diamond anniversary convention was held in Texas, where the National Farmers Union had started in 1902. Some 2,000 Farmers Union members participated in the convention.

PURINA HIGH OCTANE COW CHOW 36

THE DAIRY SUPPLEMENT WITH

“milk power”

WHAT GIVES PURINA Hi-O COW CHOW 36 IT'S "MILK POWER"?

Purina Dairy scientists have produced many outstanding Dairy rations through the years, but none offer a greater milk-making potential than Hi-O Cow Chow 36. This “super performing” supplement contains 36% protein. When mixed with grains according to Purina Research approved formulas it produces a “super” energy milking ration.

It is the unique scientific blending of a carefully calculated balance of proteins, minerals, vitamins and extra high energy milk-making ingredients that provides Hi-O Cow

Chow 36 with its unusual power to produce extra milk.

Use Hi-O Cow Chow 36 for on-the-farm mixing or let your Purina dealer Check-R-Mix a Purina milking ration for you containing Hi-O Cow Chow 36. He has specific formulas to make a quality milking ration with the right protein level to fit your roughages and your herd.

Records show Hi-O Concentrate 36 not only increases milk production, but dairymen report significant increase in fat test.

THE PURINA CHALLENGE....

Good cows should be challenged to reach their genetic capacity for high milk and fat production. Many DHIA records prove conclusively that an increase in energy intake produces a corresponding increase in milk production which adds to milk income. Many production records from studies at the Purina Dairy Research Center substantiate this relationship. If you are not feeding your cows to their full milk making capacity, Purina Hi-O Cow Chow 36 is the supplement that could be what you need to achieve that goal.

Let your local Purina Dealer or mail the coupon and let us help you figure the nutritional requirements of your herd to determine the exact kind and amount of milk ration containing Hi-O Cow Chow 36 you should feed for maximum milk production.
